Patty Hearst's Sister Arrested On Dope Count

By TIMOTHY J. MADDEN
Associated Press Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Anne Randolph Hearst, a younger sister of fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, has pleaded innocent to a misdemeanor drug charge after her arrest at the U.S.-Canadian border.

Miss Hearst, 19, was arrested

Tuesday at Niagara Falls, N.Y., along with one of two passengers in the car she was driving when the trio entered the United States at the Rainbow Bridge, U.S. customs said. U.S. Atty. Richard J. Arcara said that in a routine search of the car and its occupants a customs agent found 1.2 grams of crystallized amphetamine, popularly known as "speed," in a sock worn by Donald R. Moffett, 21, of Denver, Colo.

Both Miss Hearst and Moffett were charged with misdemeanor possession of a controlled substance.

In an affidavit filed in connection with the arrest, the customs agent who made the search and a Drug Enforcement Administration agent who was present said both Moffett and Miss Hearst told them the amphetamine belonged to her.

The affidavit also said the substance found in a plastic bag in Moffett's sock was proved by tests to be an amphetamine.

The third person in the car, George C. Boomer, 21, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., was not charged.

Moffett and Miss Hearst were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Edmund F. Maxwell in Buffalo within four hours of their arrest. Both pleaded innocent. Maxwell released them on $1,000 recognizance bond each.

He scheduled a preliminary hearing for March 19, and both Miss Hearst and Moffett said they would be available for it.

Miss Hearst's arrest followed recent unconfirmed rumors that her sister Patricia would soon attempt to cross the border from Canada into the United States in the Buffalo area.

Officials declined to comment on where Anne Hearst had been while in Canada. Arcara said he had "no way of knowing" if she had intended to contact her fugitive sister.

Arcara also said he did not know what brought the trio to this part of the country. He also said he did not know where they had been or what their destination was.

FBI officials said they had no indication that Anne's arrest was in any way connected with their search for Patricia, but they declined comment when asked if they planned to question Anne about Patricia. Anne reportedly spent the night in Buffalo.

Miss Hearst told authorities here she was a student at Regis College in Denver, but Dr. Miles Anderson, the dean of campus life at the college, said no one by the name of Anne Hearst was registered at the college. Her parents, Randolph A. and Catherine Hearst, recently said one of their five daughters was attending college under an assumed name. Hearst is president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner.

Moffett said he worked at the school, which began its spring break last Friday. Students are not due to return there until next Monday, according to a spokesman for the school.

Miss Hearst was kidnapped from her apartment at Berkeley, Calif., on Feb. 4, 1974, by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

She subsequently renounced her family and said she was joining her abductors. She now faces a variety of state and federal charges. If she should be convicted, they could bring her life in prison.

Five GIs Killed In Air Crash

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Five U.S. Army soldiers were killed and one was injured today when a helicopter crashed on a training mission near Chunchon, 37 miles northeast of Seoul, U.S. military officials announced.

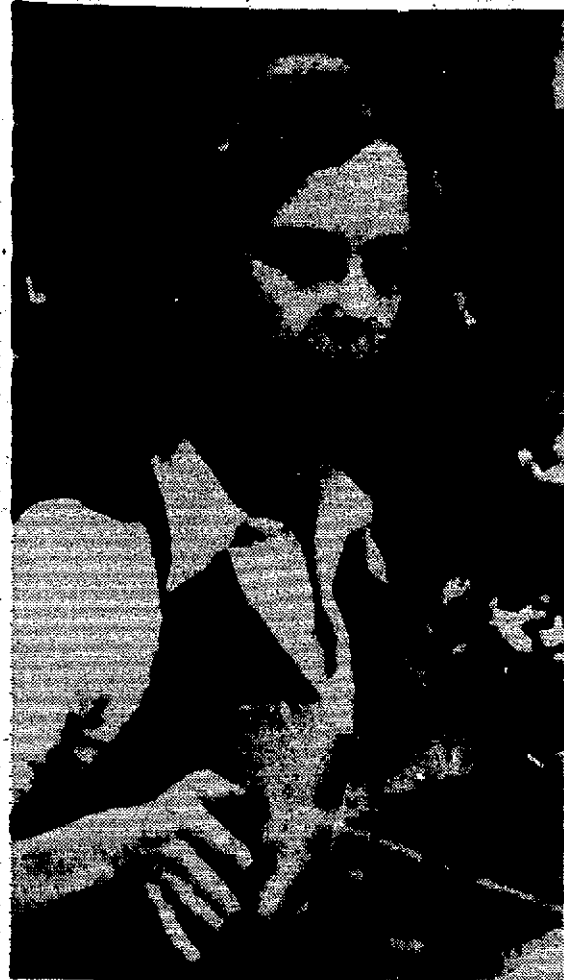

The UH1 helicopter struck a power line and crashed into a small tributary of the North Han River, officials said.

The Army said officials were investigating the crash. Names of the victims were not immediately announced.

Niles Okays Millage

NILES — Niles voters yesterday voted to renew a 19.5 mill Niles community school property tax levy by a 4 to 1 margin in a special election. Supt. Dr. William Fairman said unofficial vote totals showed the renewal question was approved 1,544 to 402. The vote total represented about 20 per cent of the some 10,000 registered voters in the district, Dr. Fairman said.

Approval of the renewal for a three-year period means the school tax millage will remain at 31.6 mills. Charles Miller, business manager for the school district, said the millage generated about $2.9 million for 1974-75 school budget of $7.9 million.

SJ Penetrator Study Mainly An Exercise

By JERRY KRIEGER
County-Farm Editor

State highway department officials have spelled out that the $100,000 environmental impact study of four possible I-94 penetrator routes into St. Joseph won't change the route they've planned for the last 10 years.

They said the department intends to let contracts in the first quarter of 1976 to build the penetrator along the old Michigan Central railroad bed between Washington and Lincoln avenues.

All the right of way for that route, from I-94 to Hilltop road at Niles avenue, has been acquired for some time already. From Hilltop and Niles, the business loop would follow Niles avenue into downtown St. Joseph and meet the new bridges being built over the St. Joseph river and Morrison channel.

Meanwhile, Enviro-Pact division of USC, Inc., Pittsburgh, is going through the motions of gathering facts and opinions on the environmental impact that four alternative routes would have. Local citizens and organizations are being asked to offer comment and information on how the four routes would affect the community, the local economy and the environment. The study is to be finished this fall.

Without knowing what the results of the study will be, Ralph Merrill, state highway department's planning manager for southwest Michigan, told the Twin Cities Area Transportation Study committee (Twin-Cats) here last Friday the penetrator contract is to be let in the first quarter of next year. Completion is expected then within two years.

Another state highway official at the meeting, John Raab, environmental liaison section manager, added that the environmental impact study is "really nothing but a disclosure document," not a decisive document.

Raab said even an unfavorable impact report would not matter, since modifications can be made to correct any deficiencies in the planned route. It was indicated that such modifications normally are not costly.

At the time the impact study was first announced in January, Tom Schriever of the highway department told this newspaper the study was required by new federal transportation department guidelines. He indicated that the study was just a necessary formality and probably would not change the planned route.

Because the St. Joseph penetrator has been so controversial over 10 years of hassling,

Lady Judge Cute, Feisty And Hassled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A miniskirted Municipal Court judge who once threatened to give a "son of a bitch" policeman a "38-vasectomy" has a defender in Police Chief Ed Davis. Judge Noel Cannon, an attractive 48-year-old blonde, faces removal from the bench on charges of judicial misconduct. But Davis told newsmen Tuesday that Judge Cannon is the "victim of a vendetta by vindictive young public defenders." "These lawyers systematically attempt to terrorize judges who are not generally inclined in favor of criminal defendants," The Commission on Judicial Qualifications has recommended to the State Supreme Court that Judge Cannon be removed for alleged willful misconduct and actions "prejudicial to the administration of justice." Accusations against Judge Cannon include "malicious" jailing of defense lawyers for contempt in what the commission said was an abuse of the contempt power.

She is also accused of threatening to shoot the testicles off a policeman whom she referred to as "a male chauvinist pig" and a "son of a bitch." She later described the same officer as the "finest of the line."

According to testimony before the commission, Judge Cannon made the comments to a court bailiff after the officer admonished the judge to stop hawking her horn at a motorist whom he said was obeying the law. Davis said he testified in Judge Cannon's defense before a three-judge panel during the commission hearings of the case last fall. He said he had told the commission that she "is one of the hardest working members of the bench and she is generally highly respected by the members of the Los Angeles Police Department."

G. Keith Wiscot, president of the Los Angeles Public Defenders Association, denied Davis' allegation of a vendetta. "Such an action is not within the professional responsibilities of a lawyer defending the indigent, or any other lawyer," he said. Judge Cannon has been suspended from her duties until the court settles the charges, but she will continue to receive her full salary.

Governor Says Unemployment Funds Assured

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The federal government will provide Michigan any money necessary to keep the state's unemployment compensation going, says Gov. William Milliken.

Milliken said Tuesday he has been assured the state will get the money on a month-to-month basis as soon as he verifies the need.

The Michigan Employment Security Commission has said its unemployment compensation fund could run out of cash as early as April.

No specific total figure is available because unemployment figures change, but an MESB spokesman said unemployment compensation benefits for the month of January were $100 million.

"We expect no interruption of benefits to those who are entitled to unemployment compensation," Milliken said.

MSU Prof Defends $342,378 Grant For Sex Research

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan State University professor today defended a $342,378 research study into the sexual activity of students and branded as "inaccurate" an assessment of the project by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Proxmire said the grant from the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development was awarded last spring on a noncompetitive basis to David J. Kallen, a former scientist-administrator at the institute and now a professor at MSU's department of human development.

Proxmire said the grant was $99,761 more than requested.

In defending the study, Kallen said it will be "scientifically important and hopefully have practical value."

Kallen said it is more than just a study of sex life on a large American campus.

"We are going to be looking at sexual behavior, but also other aspects of the behavior as well," he explained. "The value of the study is understanding the influence of peer groups, parents and other adults on the behavior of young people."

"There will be particular concern for whether or not they engage in intercourse, and if they do, for understanding the effectiveness of their use of contraceptives."

The 45-year-old professor added:

"We are concerned about the fact that a substantial minority of college students who are having intercourse are not adequately protected contraceptively. And we would hope our studies would lead to information which would permit development of programs to make sure such students were protected."

The project includes interviews with 400 to 600 unmarried women who go to the school's health center for pregnancy tests and volunteer to discuss their sexual activity.

Additional interviews are to be held with 400 male and 400 female students chosen at random.

The questionnaire still must be approved by the White House Office of Management and Budget before the five-hour interviews, which graduate students will conduct for $5.50 an hour, can legally begin.

The project is part of a multi-project proposal begun two years ago on "research on the regulation of fertility."

Kallen has a professional background in survey research and social psychology, rather than fertility studies, Proxmire aides said.

The senator said he was concerned about possible invasions of privacy, waste of taxpayers' money and a pattern of higher grants than requested. He said he has asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the institute's grant procedures.

PUT IT IN WRITING: Highland Park, Mich., City Clerk Tremor McDermott is unhappy because Mayor Robert B. Blackwell is ignoring his request for additional personnel in the clerk's office. Said McDermott Tuesday, "I'm still taking care of the public, but I'm more or less neglecting department heads. If they want help from me, they can put it in writing and I'll get to it when I can." Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Catching Up To Dubious Public Financing

Ever since most states adopted rigid constitutional limitations during the 1930s depression years to pledging their full faith and credit for public financing without prior approval by the voters, their political leaders have concocted all manner of schemes to get out from under the fence.

The revenue bond, an obligation whose only security is the physical asset and its earning power in a project was the first escape hatch.

The special assessment district antedated the constitutional hurdle by decades. Its employment escalated greatly after the barrier was erected.

Special taxes neither specifically approved nor proscribed by the limitation's precise wording are another favorite.

Tomorrow the New York Housing Finance Agency, the largest public housing authority among the 50 states and the one with the most impeccable credit standing, will learn how binding the financial people regard the latest wrinkle in legal subterfuge. This is the moral obligation bond or note.

The Agency has $5 billion of this MO indebtedness outstanding and goes into the money market Thursday to sell an additional $94 million.

The question in its directors' minds is what will be the market's reception in light of a financial paternity suit between Governor Carey and the bankers.

Back in the early '60s when he was running the Albany state house, Nelson Rockefeller consulted with John Mitchell, then a Wall Street lawyer specializing in municipal finance, on how to work around repeated voter rejection to finance public housing through the constitutional orthodoxy of hypothecating the state's credit and taxing power.

Mitchell came up with the moral obligation type of security which subsequently 30 other states, Michigan included, copied to finance housing, schools, libraries, hospitals and anything else considered essential or desirable.

Rockefeller was concerned with a wider sweeping companion to the Agency. It was a state owned company entitled the New York Urban Development Corporation.

Mitchell split UDC's borrowing into two parts. One was UDC bonds secured by the Corporation's assets and earning power.

The second was a UDC note not secured by anything except the premise that should its sinking fund for paying the notes run in the red, the Governor had the moral obligation to request the state legislature to make up the deficit from the public treasury.

The legislature had no compulsion to respond, but the concept that it would do so was strongly emphasized.

The money market at the time was much more receptive than it is today and the investment bankers easily floated UDC revenue bonds and MO notes by the ton.

Last week The Corporation defaulted on over $100 million of its MO notes.

The bankers who sold the paper are demanding that Governor Carey call upon the legislature to pay the bill.

Carey refuses unless the underwriters give him a long term guarantee they will distribute at least another $300 million in MOs to be issued by still a third public housing outfit styled as the New York Project Finance Agency.

Both antagonists are watching the UDC noteholders to see if they might try to break the impasse by suing the Corporation.

The logjam reaches far beyond the political dueling between Carey and the money men.

Detroit has struck out twice in recent weeks on marketing what amounts to MO securities to build a new hospital and last week the Michigan State Housing Development Authority had to pull teeth to sell $25 of a hoped for $33 million offering. These are simply two samples of the ripple being observed elsewhere from the UDC stone being dropped in the financial pond.

At the best the MO security will have to be weighted down by an interest rate which today is sinking the REITs (the real estate investment trust in private projects), and those holding that portfolio.

While Carey and the bankers fire paint brushes at one another seeking to depict who is the true villain, the dilemma being one of mutual fault should be solved by reciprocal assistance.

The politicians, in the original instance, Rockefeller, and the bankers collaborated in a devious plan to circumvent the law.

It was an exhibition of dealing in a public card game with shaved cards.

The sorry consequence is that the original players for the most part are no longer at the table when it is time to sort out the pot once the sleight of hand comes to light.

Some commentators, although loudly denying any push toward totalitarianism, are wondering out loud whether the nation couldn't use a little more "discipline."

Well, it probably could—if "discipline" means self control voluntarily applied by individual citizens. That would ease major problems all down the line.

But if "discipline" means the kind of pressure from above by Communist governments, it wouldn't do much good in the long run.

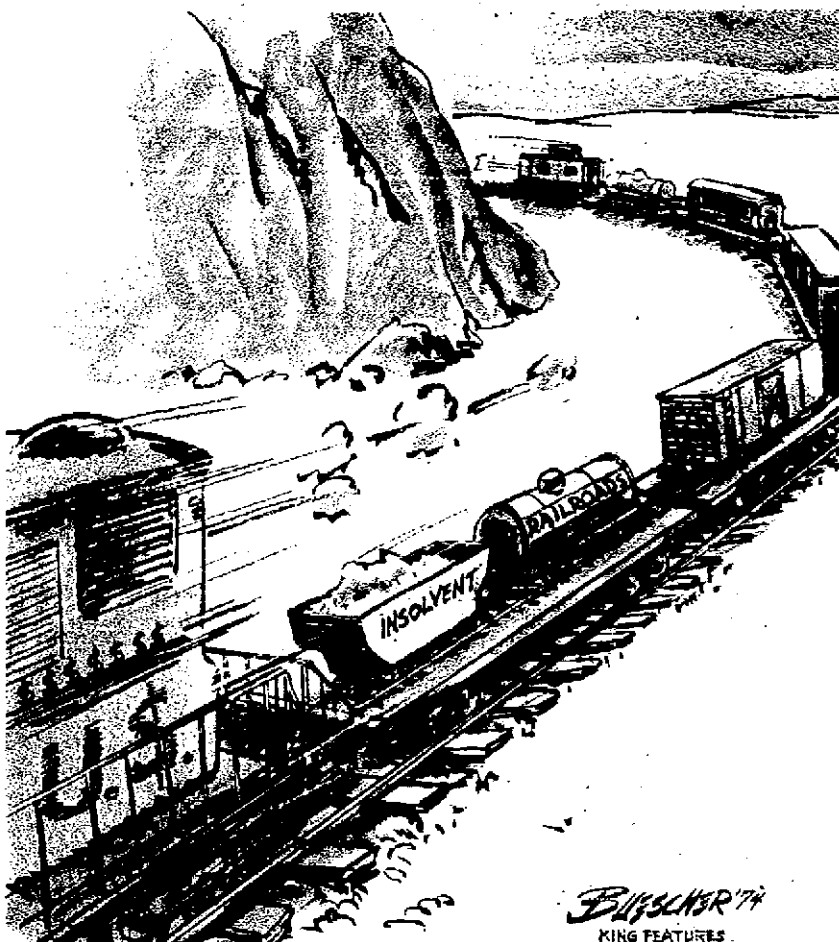

Recently, for example, East Germany has been cited in the world press as a paragon of expanding productivity and prosperity. Even so, this Communist country—with all its claimed freedom from inflation and recession—must be a lousy place to live. Or at least its own people think so.

This week's edition of U.S. News & World Report has this to say about the situation:

"The East German Communist regime, which regularly tests the political temperature of its population through opinion polls, got a severe jolt in a recent sampling. Nine out of 10 teenagers said that, if there were no Berlin Wall and the border were open, they would move to the West."

The world press headlined the resistance of a relative handful of American teens to the Vietnam War draft. But when nine out of ten young people want to leave a Communist nation, it's just a few lines in the middle of one magazine.

MOTORISTS GRATEFUL FOR ASSIST

Editor,
On our way to the Riverside United Methodist church today, we were unable to drive up the old Baker-Vawter hill because of the icy road.

Mr. Fred Gilmore was working on the Berrien county highway truck spreading salt on the hill.

When he saw we were having trouble, he had the driver of the truck, (sorry we did not get his name) back down to our car.

Mr. Gilmore put salt under our wheels and stayed with us until he was sure we were safely on our way.

We want to take this opportunity to thank him for his kind deed.

Sincerely,

STORY KINDLED HAPPY MEMORIES

Editor,
The picture of the S.S. South American on the front page of your paper Saturday, March 1st, brought back a lot of happy memories. I sailed aboard her as the cruise director during 1950 and again for a couple of weeks in 1959 following my release from the Navy. I was MC for the crew shows — including a performance at the Grand hotel, Mackinac Island — played the organ and literally drummed my way around the deck for the mile hikes.

I first sailed aboard her sister ship the S.S. North American in 1948 as a dishwasher at the age of 16. That spring the North docked in St. Joseph and I went ashore on my first liberty in this port. I worked in several other capacities from porter to cabin boy and returned the following year as a watchman in the deck department.

J. Oscar Spjut was the captain of the South back in 1950 and Mary Lou MacIntyre was the social director... a great crew and a terrific experience to sail our inland seas.

WRITER SAYS COVERAGE 'SCANTY'

Editor,
The letter published in your Feb. 28, 1975 issue of The Herald-Palladium reference the coverage of Galien sports events brings to mind a similar problem experienced by Hartford high school sports enthusiasts.

As a graduate of Hartford high school I could not help but notice the consistently scanty coverage of our local sporting events.

Certainly the efforts of all teams and coaching staffs deserve the same recognition. Whether the team is rated first or last we still are entitled to the same amount of space in the sport section (with pictures) and decent write-ups, even if your reporters have to travel a few extra miles to provide the necessary coverage each team is entitled to.

ERA Stalled In Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Efforts to win approval of the Equal Rights Amendment in Illinois have stalled in the state Senate.

A vote scheduled Tuesday on a resolution ratifying an Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was postponed by the sponsor, Sen. Esther Saperstein, Chicago, who said she didn't have enough votes on the floor to pass it.

Roads Attract A New Breed

RALEIGH, N.C. — A family from Texas limped into this town the other day with a story that is becoming increasingly and distressingly familiar to Southern officials who deal in human misery. The family was out of work, out of luck, and out of money. They'd left Texas, they said, "for something better up North," but when their cash, food and automobile gave out, they were forced to seek survival help at the local chapter of Traveler's Aid.

It's the same throughout the South and to a lesser degree throughout the nation in these hard times. Figures are unavailable as yet, but authorities say many thousands of families are leaving their homes for real or imagined opportunities elsewhere. Very often, the new migrants find the grass even shorter en route. Welfare agencies, police departments and others in the social service business report "alarming" increases in the numbers of travelers asking emergency aid.

"We're snowed under," says Dolores Evans of the local Traveler's Aid. "We had 58 families in here in January, and this month there'll be more." Adds a motel owner: "I got one family here now, you might almost call them Okies. They got all they own on a trailer and a car that won't start. I don't have the heart to throw them out — but I don't know where'll they'll get a dime for car repairs and rent."

Police confirm that major highways at times reflect chapters from "The Grapes of Wrath." "I stopped this one guy who insisted on keeping his motor running while we talked," says a North Carolina state patrolman. "He said if he turned it off he'd never get it going again. I told him his back left wheel was wobbling, and that some things he'd tied to the roof were loose and he'd have to get them fixed. God, did he look sad. Kids were crying in the back seat, nobody looked like they'd eaten much. Last I saw him he was pulling off an exit, the whole car leaning 15 degrees."

There is, of course, nothing particularly new about down-and-out migrants in America. What is unusual is that many of them today are middle class. Dolores Evans says she is seeing "a great many more blue collar workers who have been laid off, and even a lot of college-educated people who've been thrown out of the labor market."

A chap stranded off Interstate 85 near Durham recently told a reporter he was a microbiologist by profession, but did not have 20 cents to make a phone call, much less money for a wrecker.

New to poverty, then, some of the recession migrants are having a much harder time of it than peers more used to being poor. Says a Raleigh welfare worker: "Many of them just don't know where to go for help. If they did, they'd steer clear of North Carolina altogether. The laws in this state do not recognize emergency assistance."

Thus, ignorant, some migrants reach truly desperate depressions before finding aid. Dolores Evans says people come into her office who haven't eaten for days, who've slept in their cars for days, and whose infant children "haven't had diapers changed since I don't know when."

In a few cases, the migrants have been reduced so low they are almost dangerous. Cops tell of roadside, battles with travelers who can't afford tickets. A U-Haul trailer man says he was threatened with a knife by a would-be renter who did not have deposit money. The receptionist at the Raleigh Traveler's Aid says frustrated migrants shout, call names, stomp, demand — and, periodically, even threaten murder if food, money or other help are not rapidly forfeited.

Most times, of course, the help is given. But at best it's temporary, and invariably not enough. Thus the new migrants, the recession hobos, keep pushing for greener climes, to the next town, to the next state. "What else can I do?" asks 48-year-old Ed Washington. "I can't stay in Georgia with no work. I can't stay in Carolina with no work. Couple weeks ago, man, I had to kick my dog out the car 'cause it was either lose him or eat him. I mean it's that bad. I figure it's got to be better up North, 'cause it can't be no worse. I mean, can it?"

A Fresh Route For Congress

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, ruling that President Nixon could not evade surrendering the 64 subpoenaed tape recordings of Watergate conversations which were to ruin him, observed last summer:

"While the Constitution diffuses power the better to secure liberty, it also contemplates that practice will integrate the dispersed powers into a workable government."

Ho-hum. Those words sound like a fancy legal version of the old high school civics textbook, right?

Yet that phrase may turn out to have great significance. It could be interpreted as encouraging a trend toward greater triangular government, in which Congressmen would freely resort to the courts for solutions that escape them in the legislative process.

The first such suit in history was filed only four years ago, but since then there have been at least eight other suits by Congressmen individually or in groups. The results have been mixed.

The latest is a suit by Sen. Edward Kennedy in U.S. District court here to declare unconstitutional President Ford's pocket veto of an aid-to-handicapped bill during the 32-day Congressional recess last fall. Kennedy won a verdict six months ago in the U.S. Court of Appeals that President Nixon's pocket veto, during a 5-day holiday recess, of a family medicine program was illegal.

The government adopted the narrow view that the ruling applied only to recesses of brief duration and refused to appeal.

it to the Supreme Court.

Kennedy is pursuing the issue, again, both to establish the principle that all recess pocket vetoes are illegal and to force a Supreme Court decision to settle once and for all whether members of Congress have proper legal "standing."

"Standing" is a legal requirement that a party have sufficient stake in an otherwise justiciable controversy to obtain a judicial resolution of that controversy. Without it, the courts will not hear the party's case.

So far, only two U.S. Courts of Appeal have ruled on the question, and they have taken opposite viewpoints. The Second Circuit court in New York has held that a Congressman who has not been authorized to prosecute his suit on behalf of Congress has no right to invoke the power of the court to answer the question. The U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia, however, has ruled that a Congressman has an essential interest in a question about legislative power in which he participates with his vote.

The concept of using federal courts to help Congressmen accomplish ends that seem beyond Congressional authority to enforce or for which a Congressional majority cannot be mustered was pioneered by Warren Mitchell (D-Md.) in 1971.

He sued the Nixon administration to halt U.S. military activities in Southeast Asia on grounds they were unauthorized by Congress and therefore illegal. The court rejected his position, but did state that he had the right to come in court with the problem.

F&M Capitalization Going Up 25 Per Cent

Stockholders in the Farmers & Merchants National bank at their annual meeting Tuesday afternoon approved the basis for a 25 per cent increase in the Benton Harbor financial institution's capital structure, adopted an indemnity plan for officers and directors, and re-elected directors for another year.

The stockholder meeting ratified a management proposal to increase the bank's stock from 200,000 to 250,000 shares of $10 each par value by issuing the additional 50,000 shares against retained earnings. A directors' annual meeting following shortly thereafter voted to transfer a like amount of $500,000 from undivided profits to surplus.

The total capitalization increase from $4 to $5 million substantially raises the F&M's lending power to individual borrowers. The new base creates a potential $1 million loan authorization to any single account. The additional stock certificates are scheduled for delivery next week.

The indemnity plan authorizes the bank to insure its officers and directors against outsider and stockholder claims for alleged derelictions not of the individual's own creation.

Re-elected as directors at the meeting were W.J. Banyon, A.

Edward Brown, Randall J. Burch, Joseph D'Agostino, Warren E. Gast, Leon P. Gideon, Ross L. Gilmore, J. Ken Keefer, John E. Steimle, Richard E. Willard and John G. Yerington.

A directors' session following the shareholders' meeting re-elected Keefer as board chairman, Willard as president and Gideon as vice president.

Others in the officer roster re-elected were:

Senior vice presidents: Jack A. Vance, Edward J. Conrad, F. Ashley Brecht and Joseph M. Appel.

Vice presidents: Alvin Kroening (also cashier), Keith Russell,

David R. Ohman and William C. Heyn.

Assistant vice presidents: Donald C. Kelly, Alva Mullen, Carol A. Eckert, Allen DePriest, George Hilton, Richard Kibler, Kenneth Conklin and Clarence Compton.

Auditing and data processing: Glenn Conrad, William C. Bean and Michael Lynch.

Trust department: Atty. Robert L. Vandenberg, senior vice president; James Taylor, vice president; Daisy Williams and Burwell Carmichael, trust officers; Mark Kruggel, trust investment officer; Dean Smith, assistant trust officer.

Berrien Manpower To Display New Center On Sunday

By STEVE SAGER
Staff Writer

Grand opening for the Berrien County Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC), at 522 Columbus avenue, Benton Harbor, will be held Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m.

Berrien OIC is a manpower training program based on the self-help concept. The program began operations last November under the direction of Rev. Donald Adkins, pastor of Second Baptist church in Benton Harbor.

The Grand Opening was delayed until recent completion of $38,000 in remodeling. The OIC building was the former Eleanor club, a residence for single women. The renovation included converting dormitory rooms into offices, classrooms and a reception area.

Funding for OIC comes from CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training act) and Model Cities programs.

Included in the grand opening will be a ribbon-cutting ceremony with Benton Harbor Mayor Charles F. Joseph and Benton Township Supervisor Martin J. Lane participating.

The ribbon-cutting will be followed by an introduction and remarks from Rev. Adkins. Also scheduled to speak are: Walter Lact, chairman of the county manpower council; Roger Petrie, Berrien county coordinator; Robert Love, Berrien county director of CETA; Mayor Joseph; St. Joseph Mayor Franklin Smith and Melvin Farmer, Jr., deputy Benton Harbor city manager and director of the Benton Harbor-Benton township Model Cities program.

Ambulance Panel Submits Proposals To Municipalities

An informal committee studying the ambulance situation in the Twin Cities has sent to seven area municipalities proposed articles of incorporation for an authority to set up an emergency service.

St. Joseph City Manager G.W. Heppler is a member of the "ad hoc" committee that drew up the articles of incorporation. Articles of incorporation were sent to Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, St. Joseph township, Benton township, Lincoln township, Royan township and Solus township. Heppler said he expected each governmental unit to make recommendations and hoped in about two weeks to have a final outline of the authority.

According to Heppler, there are the following options:

— 1. Establish an authority representative of the local governmental units.

— 2. Have that authority set up a new ambulance service with local government support.

— 3. Have the authority control a local existing ambulance service which would be subsidized by local municipalities.

— 4. Do nothing.

Presently there are two ambulance services in the Twin Cities. They are Rampart and Action. Rampart temporarily closed in February due to financial troubles. Rampart reopened Tuesday.

Action was the first ambulance service in the area. Action was subsidized, but local governmental units withdrew the subsidy last year.

The informal committee which drew up the articles of incorporation began a study of the problem shortly after the subsidies were withdrawn.

Lenten Meditation

By Rev. Lloyd A. Phillips
Stevensville United Methodist Church
Today's Scripture: Ephesians 5:1-2, 8-10

Why life at all? Every living thing, whether it lives for a fraction of a second or several millennia, seems to serve a purpose as a part of the web of life. But the uniqueness of man is that he can ask the question, "Why do I live?" and then, within limits, shape his life in accordance with his understanding. Christianity provides an exciting answer to the question of the purpose of human life in the words of Paul, "Therefore be imitators of God, as beloved children." This is a call to self-realization; because we are made in the image of God. It is also an invitation to high adventure as we "learn what is pleasing to the Lord." This learning process occurs as we look to Christ the Light and trust in Him. Then we experience a new dimension in self-fulfillment which helps us to understand the joy of discovery Paul expressed in the words, "... the fruit of light is found in all that is good and right and true." I covet this joy of discovery for all God's children this Lenten season.

These Lenten Meditations are coordinated by the Berrien County Council of Churches.

Family Planning Meeting Tonight

The second meeting of the classes in Modern Methods of Natural Family Planning, sponsored by the Couple to Couple League, will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the Parish hall of St. Bernard's Catholic church, Benton Harbor. Any married or engaged couple is invited to the remaining three classes, scheduled for tonight, April 9 and May 7. The natural family planning method, according to Mrs. Houseal, teaches fertility awareness, which enables a couple to act responsibly with that knowledge to plan their family. Her Kentucky Heritage Told In Song And Story

By ARLYS DERRICK
Women's Editor
Her love of her Kentucky home and appreciation of generations of family heritage shone through the songs Nancy Eversole sang for Monday Musical club this week. The occasion was the annual spring luncheon held at the First Congregational church in Benton Harbor. Nancy — the Kentucky Woman — sang songs learned from her father — tales and music of the Kentucky mountains, childhood home both for her and her husband who made the dulcimers and rhythm toy she used as accompaniment. Interspersed with the songs were intimate stories of her family and their life in the Kentucky mountains. She said and sang: —Spring is something special in the mountains when folk can once more travel to see each other — Her song: "May Carol." —Some of the mountain songs came originally from Scotland with hundreds of verses but the songs were shortened or verses were lost so the songs have come down through generations in several versions — Her song: three versions of "He's Gone Away." —The turn-of-the-century play parties were very popular. Whole families came and while the dance music sounded in the main room of a house, little children were placed in the featherbed in the only bedroom next door with little babies safe in pulled out dresser drawers. Mother sang a lullaby in time to the dance music. — Her song: "Shoemaker's Song" and the lullaby version. Her grandfather ran a licensed distillery in the mountains and when he died, the grandmother ran the business — uncensored — having to give it up when trouble came from the "revenuers" and she married again. The grandmother was greatly appreciated for her singing by the mountain people. — Her song: One of grandmother's favorites, "Pretty Polly." —Carved wooden rhythm toys were favorites with both young and old. Her song: "Fare Thee Well" accompanied by a dancing toy. —Girls quite often married the first man they could find and sometimes, it seems, men did the same. — Her same, sometimes to their regret. — Her song: "Gentle Fair Jenny," story of how one man solved the "problem" he married. —Going home one summer, her love for the mountains and her home came through and she composed in her own song: "Kentucky Woman." You can't stop it, and you can't get off! So you might as well enjoy the ride on the cost cutting merry-go-round. One cut of meat — a three-pound boneless pork shoulder seasoned with thyme and garlic powder — provides the meat for three main dishes. In Crowd-Pleaser Barley Soup, both pork broth and meat accent tomatoes, corn, celery and onions. There's plenty to go 'round. Another remarkable meal is planned around Circus Sauerkraut Logs. Individual rich biscuit packets, made from quick or old-fashioned oats, hold cubed pork and sauerkraut. Carousel Casserole is yet another entree from the cooked pork. With these recipes, inflation may gallop, but you hold on to the reins of your budget!

To Cook Pork:

3 lb. boneless pork shoulder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon crushed thyme
8 cups water

To prepare pork, sprinkle with salt, garlic powder and thyme. Brown in four-quart Dutch oven over low heat. Add water; bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer covered 1 1/4 hours or until fork tender. Remove meat from broth, trim away excess fat and cube remaining meat. Skim broth.

Separate meat into portions of 1/2 cups for Crowd-Pleaser Barley Soup, 1/2 cups for Circus Sauerkraut Logs and one and one-third cups for Carousel Casserole.

If necessary add water to make eight cups pork broth. Separate into portions of five cups broth for Crowd-Pleaser Barley Soup and three cups for Carousel Casserole.

1 cup quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked
Two-thirds cup shortening, soft
1 cup milk

For filling, stir cornstarch, sugar and salt into butter in medium-sized saucepan. Add soy sauce and water; stir to combine. Cook, stirring constantly, over medium heat until mixture thickens and becomes transparent. Remove from heat and stir in pork and sauerkraut.

For dough, sift together flour, baking powder and salt into bowl; stir in oats. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk gradually, mixing lightly until dough can be formed into a ball. Knead gently a few times. Divide dough in half and turn out onto lightly floured canvas or board. Roll each half to form a 15 by 10-inch rectangle; cut into five-inch squares. Place on greased cookie sheets and spoon about two tablespoons filling diagonally across center of each square. Bring opposite sides together; fold and pinch tips of corners together to seal. Bake in preheated hot oven (425 degrees) 14 to 16 minutes. Serve with sauted apple rings. Makes six servings.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Hubby Shouldn't Go Partying

Dear Ann Landers: I am just now recovering from the "party season." The depression lasted five weeks. Please tell me what to do.

My husband and I have been married 11 years. We have two beautiful children. I love him very much, and I believe he loves me. But whenever we go where liquor is served, he becomes one of those obnoxious, lecherous drunks who can't keep his hands off other women.

They can be 15 years older than he is, ugly as sin, and still he makes overt, outrageous passes. I am humiliated to death.

I know it's the booze. He never behaves like such a fool when he's sober. I've tried to talk to him about it but he never remembers a thing — says I'm exaggerating or making things up. Any help? — Dying Inside

Dear Dying: Of course it's the booze and there isn't anything you can do about it. The guy should never touch a drop.

One of these days an irate husband might give Romeo a fat lip or open his head with a bottle. That may hasten him on his way to permanent sobriety, which would solve his problem — and yours.

Falling Uppers

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a woman who was reluctant to have her teeth extracted because she was afraid it would interfere with her love life. Her letter was followed by several readers who urged her to go ahead and do it — "better to have dentures than rotten teeth," etc.

I dare you to print the other side. There is one, you know. Haven't you read the ads or been in a drugstore lately? How could you fail to see the dozens of adhesive agents — powders, pastes, and liners for sale — all promising to help make dentures stick?

Sure, some dentures are fine, but a great many are not. I've spent over $3,000 trying to get dentures I can eat with and I'm not exactly rolling in money. I had to go without necessities to pay those dental bills. I finally gave up last year after consulting a professor of dentistry at a well-known university.

I don't have much to laugh about these days, but when I do laugh, my uppers fall down. I'd give my right arm to have my own teeth back again. A good dentist can do a lot to save natural teeth. Mine didn't even try. He said, "You'll be better off with dentures. They're cheaper, too." Funny how people hate to spend money on their teeth — until it's too late. Then they'll spend a fortune on plastic ones that slide around, make sores and cause nothing but trouble.

— Another Witness

Dear A.W.: Dr. Paul Goldhaber, dean of dental medicine and professor of periodontology at Harvard, says, "Don't give up. Try another dentist. It's worth the effort."

Dr. Goldhaber also said people should insist that their dentist make every effort to save as many natural teeth as possible.

One of the principal problems with extractions is that the bone sometimes continues to resorb and the dentures then loosen. Another problem is that certain patients have a psychological hang-up about their dentures and they cannot adjust to them — no matter what. Good luck to you.

Peeling Cure

Dear Ann: Because I've learned so much from your column I want to pass on a little tip to your readers who hate to peel onions because it makes them cry. Keep your mouth shut and you'll be completely dry-eyed. — Tenn. Fan

Dear Fan: That's good advice even if you're NOT peeling onions. Thank you.

How much do you know about pot. L.S.D., cocaine, speed, meth, uppers and downers, glue and heroin? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

A Mouse In The House

PRAYER OF A WOMAN WHO IS AT HOME ALONE WITH A KNOWN MOUSE IN THE HOUSE.

"Dear Heavenly Father: Thou art probably wondering why I am sitting here in the middle of the coffee table with an electric broom in my hand.

"The simple truth is, Lord, that yesterday as I sat meditating on Your goodness, a 15-pound, full-grown mouse with vengeful eyes, who had not eaten since birth, invaded my kitchen.

"I know not for what reason I am being punished, Father, but could we talk about it?"

"As You well know, I am not one of the most stable persons in your flock. (You will remember how the dead water bug in the sink trap who charged me, put me to bed with a migraine for a week?) That is why I was unprepared when You sent me this 40-pound monster that stalked along the wall lustful to satisfy his craving for human flesh.

"I'm sorry I said Ruth Swampfox was such a lousy cook she sliced cheese against the grain and it came out tough. That wasn't very charitable.

"I'm sorry for putting the bathroom scales on the carpet weighing myself, and telling everyone I dropped five pounds in a week. That was dishonest.

"I'm sorry to pretend I don't hear the children calling when I am in the bathroom eating Halloween candy before dinner. That's greedy.

"I'm sorry I let my husband chew the kids out for not taking down a phone message when I remember wrapping my gum in it. That's cowardly. (If this isn't enough, I've got more.)

"I'm a weak person, Lord, but I do deserve a prehistoric rodent with fangs who leaps and bounds from one wall to the next looking for a throat to bite."

"Believe me, Lord, when I tell You, You are the last one to whom I can turn. When I talked to my husband he laughed. Right out loud. (One more joyful noise to You and I'm going to have him committed.) He said to me, 'Do you mean to say that a two-ounce mouse that is one-third the size of your dust balls can cause a full-grown woman to become sick to her stomach? Do you realize you are 5.875 times the size of that mouse?'"

"Doesn't he realize, Lord, that I likewise have 5.975 times more fear in me than that mouse?"

"It's been five hours since I've seen 'The Beast' Lord. Maybe he is EEEEEEEEEEEEEEEWWWW. ON MY WORD I'LL CLEAN MY OVEN. NOW WILL YOU KNOCK IT OFF WITH THE WILD LIFE?"

Make Crumbs Of Bread

Here is a fast, neat, and efficient way to make bread crumbs out of stale bread.

Let the bread dry, slip a plastic bag over the outlet of your meat grinder, fastening it tightly with a string or rubber band. Break the stale bread into pieces and put through the meat grinder. The crumbs will come right out into the plastic bag which you can close tightly and store until you are ready to use the crumbs for breading chops and topping casseroles.

Prayer Service At Gobles Church

GOBLES — World Day of Prayer will be observed at 7:30 p.m. Friday, March 7, in the Gobles Presbyterian church. The public is invited.

Make Gelatin In Jar

The next time you make gelatin dessert for the family, why not make it in a jar? Use a one-pint jar for one package — and a quart when making two packages.

You will not have to measure the water, as those jars will hold, the required amount for the package. These containers will take up little room in your refrigerator, and make it easy for a child to serve himself.

 Opening lead — J ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

You don't need to be a mathematician to know that any time you give yourself an extra chance you are playing percentages.

South finds himself in a nice comfortable three notrump contract. He isn't really happy with the spade lead. It has killed his chance to handle a 4-1 diamond break successfully. If South is just an ordinary, careless, but reasonably good player, he knows that a suit will break 3-2 some 68 per cent of the time. He goes right after diamonds. When the suit fails to break, he struggles manfully to find a ninth trick. The same gods of chance, who caused the bad diamond break, fail to cooperate with him and he winds up with eight tricks and a slight headache.

A careful good player looks around before playing to trick two. He sees those four clubs in dummy and reasons that maybe clubs will break 3-3. If they do and diamonds break also he can collect 12 tricks, instead of the 11 he would get by starting diamonds. Far more important he sees that a 3-3 club break can give him his ninth trick if diamonds don't break.

Then our careful player gives himself an extra chance at no cost at all. At trick two he leads a club from dummy and ducks in his own hand. It doesn't matter what West does now. South wins the lead; cashes his ace and king of clubs and has established dummy's last club as an all important extra trick.

PISCES

FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1975

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) Avoid any tendency toward vacillation. Set sights calculatingly on your target, and aim for it unerringly. Mars influences helpful.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) Be solicitous of fellowmen but not to the point of being "taken in." There are some who would prey on anyone who will listen.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) Care needed in both domestic and budgetary matters. Also, avoid restlessness and changeability. A day for straight-line thinking and action.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) Lunar influences stimulate optimism and foresight. An excellent day for making plans — especially those of a long-range nature.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) Through sheer personality, you can be an effective influence in areas where barriers have been erected. Your spirit of enterprise stimulated.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Not a good day in which to mix business with pleasure. Romy promises made in an aura of congeniality could prove deceptive.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) You will require more than ordinary patience now; will also have to be extremely careful in making decisions. Turn thumbs down on dubious schemes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) Some opposition likely. Listen closely to all analysis, interpret carefully and, thus fortified, you can plan effective strategy for overcoming it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Examine your inner being to determine your true strengths and sense of values.

Otherwise, you may be misled by your emotions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't blow up trifles beyond all proportion, and DO be careful not to misjudge others. You could get the wrong angle on their activities through your own misinterpretation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Mixed planetary influence should put you on your toes now. There's a special need for adaptability and efficiency — also a sense of humor!

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't crowd yourself in the early hours, so that you become overly fatigued. Some interesting situations arising after noon will demand your complete alertness, good judgment.

SJ Schools Chief Describes Consequences Of Millage Vote

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer
St. Joseph schools Spt. Burton Aldrich stressed two points yesterday in discussing two operating tax millage proposals that will be voted on March 18. 1. Aldrich said flatly schools could not open next September if Proposal No. 1 — 23.09 mills — is not approved. 2. If Proposal 1 is approved and Proposal 2 for 1.91 mills fails, the district will have to cut about $252,000 in services and class offerings.

Aldrich described consequences of the millage to St. Joseph Kiwanians at their noon meeting at the Elks lodge.

The total package before voters is 25 mills of which 23.09 mills for five years are replacement of operating taxes that have expired. Proposal No. 2 of 1.91 mills represents a tax increase to help meet rising operating costs.

Aldrich noted the 23.09 mills are all of the district's extra voted millage which expired all at once. Without it only about 8.3 mills allocated by the county would remain.

"You couldn't make enough cuts to operate with only allocated millage," Aldrich said.

The superintendent presented statistical information:

State aid cuts meant the district lost $36,000 this year. Utilities, transportation and maintenance costs next year will be up about 20 per cent, or $81,800. Supplies and insurance will increase $53,250, or about 10 per cent.

Aldrich said salary costs will go up about $193,900, or about 5 per cent. He said salaries account for about 83 per cent of all expenses.

As to teachers, Aldrich said they are excellent and remain in St. Joseph schools, because of the stability of the district. He noted also that this puts most at the top of the pay scales for years of service.

Aldrich listed probable cuts

if the 1.91 mills fail. These include termination of bus service to 450 students who live within 1½ miles of school and who do not live on state highways; reduction in class offerings and faculty. Cuts in athletic programs and school clubs also were mentioned. Aldrich is scheduled to present millage information again next Monday, before the Twin City Rotary club. A native of St. Joseph, Aldrich became superintendent Dec. 1, after being superintendent at Ionia.

Watervliet Gets Budget Proposal For Recreation

WATERVLLET — Watervliet city commission last night received a tentative budget of $7,630 for operating the combined Watervliet city, township and school district recreation program this summer.

The budget projected income of $4,140 in fees from specific programs and special projects. The $3,490 balance was to come from governmental agencies involved, but no breakdown of costs to each was included.

Allan Avery, 23, program director, and the commission's parks committee were scheduled to meet March 17 to go over the proposals and financing.

Presley Olson, president of the 12-member council created to develop the combined program, said copies of the budget would be presented to Watervliet township March 10.

The program is to oversee baseball, softball, tennis and other recreation activities for people living in the city, township and school district.

In other areas, the commission accepted the sole bid of $275 for conducting a required structure inventory and appraisal on two city bridges submitted by R. W. Petrie and Associates, Benton Harbor.

The commission, at the suggestion of Mayor Robert Flaherty, voted not to participate in Mayor's Exchange day, May 19 during Michigan Week activities. The city had been paired with Hancock, Michigan.

Flaherty appointed with commission approval, three persons to serve on the city's board of review. Named were Frank Brule, Richard Rogers and Commissioner William Loshough. The board will meet Monday and Tuesday, March 10 and 11, at city hall.

Muth informed the commission of minor vandalism at Baldwin Field discovered Feb. 26 resulting with a damaged door to the parks concession stand.

Flaherty announced that the next regular commission meeting would be held Tuesday April 8 and not April 1 to allow time for preparation of bills.

Keeler Schedules Meetings

KEELER — Keeler township board last night announced dates for the township's annual meeting and settlement day.

The annual meeting will be Saturday, April 5, at 1 p.m., and settlement day will be Saturday, March 22, at 1:30 p.m. Both meetings will be held in the social room of the township fire hall.

In other areas, the board said it would check into a complaint aired by Don Manelle, concerning what he termed trash and abandoned vehicles around the James Murray residence on Little Crooked lake.

Richard Johnson, chairman of the township planning commission, announced the commission would meet tonight with township businessmen concerning future township plans on where commerce and industry can expand in the township. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Sister Lakes branch of the Van Buren State bank.

John Scherer, township treasurer, reported that 85 per cent of 1974 township property taxes were in by March 1.

Robber Spares Bar Patrons

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A man armed with a shotgun and identifying himself as a laidoff worker robbed a nearby bar, but told patrons he wouldn't take their money because "you are scraping for a dollar just like me."

Police said the man left the Four Seasons bar after drinking there for a while Monday night, returned later with a shotgun and stole $241 and a fifth of whiskey.

Officers said the shotgun discharged, apparently accidentally, during the incident and the nervous robber fumbled to reload.

Then he gave the barmaid a knife, ordered her to cut off the telephone receiver, and fled.

Police said they have no suspects in the case.

Release Is Given Berlin Politician

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin politician Peter Lorenz was freed, unharmed during the night, and police began a massive manhunt for eight persons suspected of having a part in his kidnapping.

The 32-year-old head of West Berlin's Christian Democratic party was released after a former mayor of the city returned from Aden and broadcast a message to the kidnappers. He said that the government of South Yemen had given unrestricted asylum to five anarchist convicts released from prisons in West Germany and West Berlin.

Lorenz, who had been threatened with death, was freed at midnight in the Wilmsdorf district and telephoned his wife from a public phone booth. Police Chief Klaus Huebner said he was exhausted but apparently in good condition otherwise.

Despite his six days in confinement, Lorenz was shaved, his hair was combed and he was wearing a tie and scarf under his topcoat. He was also wearing glasses which his kidnappers apparently had given him since his own pair was found in his car after two men and a woman made off with him last Thursday.

Officials said Lorenz would hold a news conference later today. Huebner posted a $40,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the terrorists and declared: "From now on, police are no longer bound by any promises."

Scores of helmeted police armed with submachine guns began combing Wilmsdorf and other areas for the kidnappers and their hideout. Cars were searched at major intersections, and a number of suspected anarchists were rounded up in a raid on a commune.

Police reported 85 persons picked up for questioning but said they did not include any of the eight major suspects.

These were headed by Angela Luther, 34, identified as one of the three who kidnapped Lorenz, and Ralf Reinders, 25. He is considered the leader of the anarchist-terrorist Movement of the Second of June which claimed it kidnapped Lorenz.

The organization is named for June 2, 1967, when police killed a student during a riot in West Berlin protesting a visit by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran.

The other suspects are Inge Viett, 30, who broke out of a Berlin jail last year while being held on terrorism charges; Werner Sauber, 27, an alleged explosives expert; Norbert Kroecker, 24; Til Meyer, 30, who is also wanted for an attempt to murder a policeman, and Andreas Vogel, whose age was not given.

RELEASED: Berlin politician Peter Lorenz, right, and wife (dark glasses) are whisked away in police car after questioning in West Berlin Tuesday night. Lorenz was set free by anarchists after five days of captivity and after five jailed anarchists were released. (AP Wirephoto)

Fair Credit Award Totals $321,750

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — A federal jury has awarded $321,750 to a woman who charged that a credit investigating firm gave out false, defamatory and libelous information about her.

The judgment, believed to be the largest ever awarded under the Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1971, was granted last week in a case filed by Barbara Collins against Retail Credit Co., which is based in Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Collins filed the suit about two years ago after an application she submitted to get insurance coverage was refused without explanation.

According to the suit, she then went to the Retail Credit office in nearby Saginaw to find out what information it was circulating about her. She charged the credit firm withheld some reports from her and others defamed her.

The Retail report said Mrs.

Collins was an excessive drinker, said her attorney, Forrest Walpole of Caro. "And she's not," he added.

Mrs. Collins charged the firm violated the federal credit law by withholding some reports from her and not having procedures to insure maximum accuracy.

She said the firm also did not re-investigate her case after she told it of the false reports.

A spokesman for the Senate Banking Committee, which developed the law, said the Bay City judgment is thought to be the largest under the new law.

The statute was designed to safeguard individual rights of privacy and to protect against dissemination of false information by credit agencies.

Retail Credit attorney Richard Smith of Bay City said the firm is seeking a new trial and probably will appeal the judgment.

Congress Pushes Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional committees are pushing ahead with their own energy and tax proposals in the face of President Ford's temporary retreat on key parts of his energy-conservation program.

Saying that he was striving to avoid a "time-wasting test of strength" with Congress, Ford backed off part of his program for the time being on Tuesday. Among other steps, he agreed to delay for 60 days the last two steps of a $3-a-barrel special tariff on imported oil.

At the same time, the President vetoed a Democratic-sponsored bill that would have delayed for 90 days all three steps of the special tariff.

Meantime, the Senate Finance Committee was to hold hearings today on the House-passed, $21.3-billion tax cut bill.

And the House Ways and Means Committee continued work today on energy conservation proposals, with particular emphasis on the committee's own plan to reduce energy consumption through quotas on imported oil and an eventual 40-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax increase. The tax is now four cents a gallon.

Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., indicated that Congress would not be able to complete work on an energy program within the 60 days that Ford agreed to delay his program.

Ullman said he hoped for House floor action on a program at the end of April, about the time the 60-day delay expires. But Ullman said he hoped Ford then would "accommodate us by giving us additional time to work it through the Senate."

An immediate impact of Ford's announcement was to raise serious doubts about the prospects of any congressional override of his veto. The Senate leadership shelved for the time being any effort to override. And Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., conceded that the President's offer of compromise made it impossible to collect 67 senators in favor of the override.

House Speaker Carl Albert said earlier in the week that the House would vote on the override issue regardless of Ford's compromise, but some key members of the Ways and Means panel later said they would seek to delay such a move.

To give Congress and the administration time to hammer out an energy compromise, the President took these steps Tuesday:

—Postponed for 60 days the second and third portions of the tariff increase. The $1-a-barrel increase that went into effect on Feb. 1 will remain.

—Agreed to postpone at least until May 1 his plan to remove federal price controls from domestic oil. The end of controls, which Ford initially had announced would begin on April 1, would have allowed the price of 60 per cent of domestic oil, now frozen at $5.25 per barrel, to rise to the world level of $11.40.

Congressional economists estimate that the $3-a-barrel tariff and decontrol of "old" oil prices would cost American consumers $27.7 billion a year in higher fuel prices.

In announcing his decisions Tuesday, Ford agreed with the Democratic-controlled Congress that the major issue confronting the government is the economic recession and rising unemployment.

McLauchlin Mortuary Merging With Kerley-Starks

McLauchlin Funeral Home of Berrien Springs will merge with Kerley and Starks Funeral Home, St. Joseph, effective Oct. 1, 1975, according to Marcus McLauchlin and Robert Starks.

The McLauchlin Funeral Home, 210 North Main street, Berrien Springs, will be known as Kerley-Starks and McLauchlin Funeral Home. The joint announcement said McLauchlin will continue as a consultant to the firm.

Kerley and Starks Funeral Home, Inc., presently has facilities at 802 Main street, St. Joseph, and at 15 North Barton street, New Buffalo.

Last November, Kerley and Starks announced plans to build a new funeral home on Cleveland avenue to serve the Lakeshore-Stevensville-Baroda area. Construction has not yet started.

The McLauchlin home was established in 1940 — the same year that Marcus McLauchlin received his license to practice mortuary science.

Louis Kerlikowski has been a mortician in Berrien county since 1934. Starks joined Kerlikowski in 1961. Starks is president and Kerlikowski chairman of the firm.

NEW NAME COMING: McLauchlin Funeral Home, 210 North Main street, Berrien Springs, is scheduled to merge next Oct. 1 with Kerley and Starks Funeral Home, St. Joseph. McLauchlin will continue operation as Kerley-Starks and McLauchlin Funeral Home.

OPEC Chiefs Preparing Declaration Of Principles

ALGIERS (AP) — Leaders of the major oil exporting states meet today to complete a "solemn declaration" of principles they think should govern long-term relations with their customers.

The summit conference of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) may modify the declaration to include some of the points made by Algeria's President Houari Boumedienne in a hard-lining speech opening the conference on Tuesday.

The Algerian leader proposed a freeze in the "real" price of oil until 1980 provided the industrialized countries take part in a massive program of aid for the developing nations. He also proposed a special OPEC fund of $10 billion-$15 billion to help countries in economic difficulties pay their sharply increased bills.

The declaration, drafted by a preparatory meeting of oil, finance and foreign ministers last weekend, is to be published at the end of the three-day summit conference, probably on Thursday.

Boumedienne's 70-minute speech also included a denunciation of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, without mentioning him by name, and an attempt to drive a wedge between the United States and Western Europe.

"It appears that those who favor a policy of confrontation are playing the leading roles on the political stage of the world," Boumedienne declared. "It is clear that the increasing number of initiatives which they are taking, whether propaganda, threats or diplomatic steps of all kinds" aim at the re-establishment of a neo-colonialist domination of the Third World.

He said the European Economic Community deserves particular help from the OPEC aid fund he proposed. But in return the Common Market "should not be content to invoke the hegemony with which it is burdened, but should try to assert its own political identity and to act in such a manner that the solution to its problems comes firstly from its own endeavors and potentialities," he declared.

Boumedienne warned that Algeria would not take part in the proposed world energy talks unless they are enlarged to include raw materials other than oil and the developing countries that produce those materials.

The developing countries must be allowed to "mobilize the totality of their raw materials for the benefit of their own economies, which implies more especially that the selling price of these materials shall be raised, and their real value safeguarded," he declared.

No one else was able to address the public session. Boumedienne as chairman took the meeting into closed session immediately after his speech.

Greyhound Bill Has Good Chance

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — This will be the year a bill legalizing greyhound racing and off-track betting goes "all the way," its sponsor predicts.

Opponents of the bill, sponsored by Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, might have a different opinion. One of them is Gov. William Milliken, who has said he is opposed to extending gambling in Michigan beyond horse racing and the state-run lottery.

Milliken says his opposition includes casino gambling and dog racing.

Montgomery, chairman of the House Taxation Committee which is studying the bill, has made several unsuccessful attempts in past sessions to get similar measures through the legislature.

The bill would create a special revenue authority; provide for the control, regulation and licensing of greyhound sports racing; permit and regulate on-track pari-mutuel wagering on greyhound racing; and authorize counties to create and operate off-track betting systems.

The measure also would transfer to the special revenue authority the Bureau of State Lottery, the office of racing commissioner, and the Michigan state Athletic Board of Control.

It provides for the licensing of up to ten greyhound racetracks. In the past the bill has run into severe opposition from horse race interests who claim their industry would be threatened if it passed.

Don Gardner of the Detroit Racing Association told the committee Tuesday the bill "might prove very harmful to an established industry." He said thoroughbred racing is fighting for its life not only in Michigan but in Florida.

Allen Rice, of the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems, warned the committee the bill would help gambling make further encroachments into Michigan.

He said if the legislature approves off-track betting and greyhound racing the way would be opened for betting on sports, and casino establishments.

Board Defends Teaching Firing

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Asserting it was neither "anti-union nor anti-labor," the Crestwood Board of Education Tuesday defended the firing of its teachers before the state Supreme Court.

"We were left with no alternative... what we did was the proper thing to do and was within the law," said attorney Edward Homeier in oral arguments before the court.

The Dearborn Heights district is appealing a January Court of Appeals decision which upheld a Wayne County Circuit Court ruling that Crestwood had to reinstate 184 fired teachers. The teachers were fired Dec. 30 after refusing to end a strike which began Sept. 3, was halted, the resumed Dec. 4 over contract disputes.

Homeier said the teachers had been fired under the Public Employment Relations Act, which prohibits public workers from striking. He argued the Teacher Tenure Act did not significantly apply to dismissals for striking.

The Court of Appeals has ruled the teachers struck illegally, but said the board had to follow tenure procedures to fire them.

Homeier argued the circuit court also ignored "equities" in the case by hearing union motions in court when the teachers were in contempt for ignoring court orders.

Erwin Ellmann, representing the teachers, argued that the teachers were entitled, under the tenure act, the school code and due process clause of the constitution, to hearings before dismissal.

He said the school board had "cut off" the rights of teachers to such protection. "This placed a badge of professional infamy on every one of these teachers," he said. "It can scar their records and destroy their careers."

Public employees do not surrender the right of "procedural fair play" by working for the government, he argued. "No termination of employment can take place until the minimum standards of due process are met."

Under the employment relations act, dismissal must come under the provisions of the law applicable to the specific worker, he said. In this case, he added, it was the tenure law, which requires a hearing.

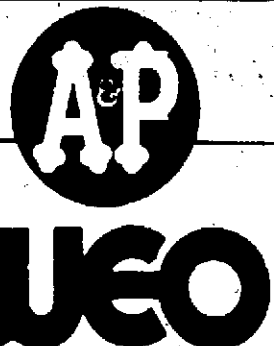

Homeier said the board had offered hearings after the firings.

"I fail to see how the employer violated anyone's due process," he said.

The two sides also disagreed over the power of the Court of Appeals to order binding arbitration—an order already overturned by the Supreme Court. Ellmann, for the teachers, said it is "a responsible way of resolving the problem here," while Homeier said the court "doesn't have the power to inject itself into a labor dispute."

Crestwood has not had a contract in effect since August 1973, and has had four strikes in nine years.

"In two years, we will have another strike, no matter what the legislature does, as long as we have that same group of teachers in the buildings," Homeier charged. Ellmann said the board's action "transformed the strike into a lockout."

LIBERALS' "great white hope" for Democratic presidential nomination seems to be Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho), chairman of Senate committee to investigate nation's intelligence gathering operations. Church said he will not attempt to gather support for his nomination but expects wide public exposure as head of the investigating committee.

Presidential Primary Survives Repeal Attempt

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The House beat back an attempt to repeal the presidential primary in Michigan but did not slam the door on the issue.

By a 3-63 vote Tuesday, the House defeated an amendment offered by Rep. John Engler, R-Mt. Pleasant, to repeal the primary.

The amendment was tied to a bill that would permit voters to register when they apply for their drivers licenses or renewal.

No final action was taken on that bill which already has passed in the Senate.

Engler said he offered the amendment "because in times of tight budgetary problems a presidential primary is an unnecessary expense."

He said the last presidential primary cost Michigan $2 million and cost local government units another $1 million.

Rep. Al Sheridan, D-Taylor, chairman of the House Elections Committee, said he supported Engler in principle and is drafting his own legislation to repeal the primary.

Sheridan said he is opposed to the Engler amendment mainly because it will probably jeopardize the voter registration measure in the Senate.

If the voter registration bill is amended in the House and passed, it must be sent back to the Senate which then would vote on the House amendments.

Rep. Dominic Jacobetti, D-Negaunee, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, also expressed fear the Senate would refuse to go along with an amendment repealing the primary, spelling possible doom for the entire measure.

He told Engler, "I go along with the theory of the amendment. Get a bill drafted and I assure you I will vote for it. I can't go along with the amendment because it may jeopardize a very good piece of legislation."

The House weakened and passed a package of nine bills designed to crack down on non-payment of taxes.

The package, as passed by the Senate and sent to the House, raised to 12 per cent the annual interest payments on unpaid taxes.

But before passing the bills Tuesday the House amended each one to bring that penalty down to nine per cent.

The most common interest rate now is eight per cent a year.

The bills, none of which deal with the state income tax, all were given immediate effect and returned to the Senate.

An estimated $150 million is owed the state treasury for business and income taxes, and to the secretary of state's office for motor vehicle taxes.

Of that amount, officials say, only $50 million is "current" and likely to be collected.

Another $50 million has been outstanding for more than a year and has little chance of being collected, they say.

The legislation was designed to discourage businesses and individuals from investing unpaid taxes at higher rates of interest than the penalty they would pay when and if caught.

Supporters of the 12 per cent penalty rate said it would be high enough to give the bill teeth. They argued that lowering the rate to nine per cent would not do the job.

The taxes covered include the severance on oil and gas, extraction, inheritance and transfers of property by wills, intangible personal property, use, cigarette, general sales and motor fuel collection tax, along with franchise fee requirements, and the filing of reports by corporations.

The House passed 106-0 and sent to the Senate a bill permitting disclosure of a person's records concerning drug abuse or prevention to anyone authorized by that individual. The measure was given immediate effect. Currently individuals are permitted to disclose their drug treatment or prevention records only to medical or government personnel.

The House passed 76-30 with immediate effect and sent to the Senate a bill regulating local government bond financing of wastewater facilities.

CRUNCH: This Grand Trunk Railroad bridge in Lansing scalps a couple trucks a year, officials say, even though the clearance is plainly marked at 11 ft. 3 in. A spokesman for the steel company which owns this neatly folded rig could not estimate the damage to the wrecked trailer. (AP Wirephoto)

Electric Co. Chief Pleads For Hike

LANSSING, Mich. (AP) — Future utility rate increases, borne in large part by residential customers, are needed if Michigan is to avoid brownouts & blackouts, the president of Consumers Power Co. told lawmakers Tuesday night.

A.H. Aymond said to claim that industrial users or stockholders pay the rising cost of electricity is "simplistic talk" that could lead to "disaster, loss of jobs and economic stagnation for Michigan."

He said it is in the residential customer's interest that investments by stockholders are protected.

If earnings are not substantially increased "we will be unable to sell the securities required to raise the capital needed to continue building for tomorrow," Aymond said at a dinner meeting with legislative leaders.

"And that ... would lead to economic disaster," he added.

Nuclear power plants, once built and working, would produce electricity at 40 per cent less cost than any alternative, he said.

Without Consumers' Marysville plant, which produces synthetic natural gas, "Michigan would be suffering the kind of industrial chaos caused by mandatory cutbacks, such as have been imposed in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and other less fortunate states," he said.

"The only real alternative is to get our earnings up... (and) to restore earnings. To restore the eroded credit rating of Michigan's utilities is going to require further rate increases," he said.

This is unavoidable. If rates are not increased, Michigan is in for serious power interruptions which will mean workers being sent home in the middle of a shift and widespread inconvenience for residential customers... And it certainly would put a stop to any industrial expansion in Michigan," he said.

Last month the state Public Service Commission gave consumers a $66 million rate boost. The company said the money would help make the utility more attractive to investors but would not by itself put life into cancelled or delayed construction projects.

Aymond did not push for specific legislation, but asked lawmakers to avoid "emotionalism" in drawing up utility-aiding bills.

FAA Supports SST Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans may be able to fly to Europe at supersonic speeds in 1976 if a Federal Aviation Administration proposal goes into effect.

The agency's recommendation came in a draft environmental impact statement on the application of British Airways and Air France to start supersonic flights between London and Paris and the United States early next year.

Milliken Proposes Bookkeeping Trick To Erase Deficit

By MACOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken proposed an alteration in state bookkeeping policy Tuesday in a move to wipe out an $180 million deficit in the current fiscal year budget.

Milliken also issued an executive order slashing state department operations by 715 million and dipping into retirement funds for another $16.5 million.

The governor's action would produce more than $220 million overall, with the surplus providing a "prudent reserve" should the economy and state revenues continue their downhill plunge.

The bookkeeping trick as formally revealed Tuesday by budget director Gerald Miller, would credit to the current fiscal year taxes levied in June but not collected until July 15. Normally that money is applied to the new fiscal year which begins July 1.

Milliken said he had considered a "wide variety of proposed alternatives" to remove the deficit. He dismissed as too harsh widespread cutbacks in public assistance, revenue sharing, layoffs, public schools and state colleges. "It was also apparent from extensive legislative discussions that there would not be support for enough short-term borrowing steps" to meet the deficit, he said.

This "accrual" method of bookkeeping is practiced by many corporations and was used on a lesser scale in 1971, following the General Motors strike. This time, it would involve revenues from the sales and use tax and the withholding portion of the personal income tax.

That would leave only minor taxes on liquor and cigarettes applied to the new fiscal year, entailing only $10 million-$15 million, according to Miller, who first disclosed the plan last week.

In short the new method would mean the state was spending money it had not yet collected. And it would mean Michigan would collect 13 months of revenue over a 12-month period.

The new bookkeeping method would be made permanent to avoid a short "11-month" fiscal year next time around, state officials said.

Meanwhile, the executive order requires approval of both the House and Senate appropriations committees within 10 days to take effect. The new accounting procedure will require legislation, but the bill and the order are tied into one program at this point.

Miller said borrowing from restricted funds is being retained as a "last resort" if the state encounters similar problems next year. The current proposal is designed to "minimize the impact" on state residents, he added.

Miller said the state cutbacks will entail operations already announced — a freeze on hiring, a ban on outstate travel, reductions in in-state travel, and curtailments on purchase of equipment, remodeling and the like.

He said the retirement funds affected are "actually sound" and the money won't have to be repaid unless they become fiscally unsound.

They include the State Police Officers Pension Fund ($1.5 million), the Michigan and Detroit public school employees' retirement system ($11 million), and the State Employees Retirement Fund ($4 million).

"This action in no way negates the need for belt-tightening," Milliken said. "With the order I am issuing today, state government has about run out of feasible notches."

The cutback is the second this fiscal year. The governor issued, and the legislature approved, a $78.5 million reduction.

Legislative leaders reacted cautiously to the bookkeeping trick when it was floated last week by the governor's office, and did not change their tune Tuesday when it was publicly announced.

house speaker Bobby Crim,

D-Davison, who referred to it earlier as "Chinese bookkeeping," said he wants to take a look "at the long-range implications."

Crim said he'd meet with Democratic leaders to discuss the proposal, and hinted Democrats might come up with their own program. The first budget-cutting order was rejected the first time around, and Crim implied this one might be, too.

Other lawmakers said last week the method may make it appear the state was in better fiscal shape than it is and that book juggling is only a temporary solution.

Democrats also might want to pin the blame for cutbacks on Milliken as long as possible before agreeing to the plan.

As Crim noted, the governor came out with "his" tax-cut plan when there was a surplus and Democrats are more than willing to let him come out with "his" belt-tightening recommendations before volunteering to share the burden.

AT WATERVLIET

Hospital Opening Doors To Students

WATERVLIET — Coloma and Watervliet schools have joined with Watervliet Community hospital in a program that will permit students into the hospital for practical vocational training as nurses aides and orderlies.

The new program represents an expansion of a present vocational course from the classrooms at the schools to the hospital, officials said.

The student trainees will accompany and be under the supervision of regular hospital personnel and will do some of the time-consuming tasks that take nurses away from more important patient-care duties, according to Howard Parker, hospital administrator.

The expanded program will allow 24 students enrolled in the nursing programs at the schools to learn about patient care at the hospital, according to Wes Arent, vocational director for the school districts.

Students will spend two hours of their 10-hour per week course at the hospital, he said, with hospital hours increased as the year progresses.

Under the present program, students were allowed only to visit the hospital.

The course is designed to develop a semi-professional worker in a short period of time, according to Mrs. Joyce Griffin, a Watervliet teacher and registered nurse.

She said there is a current high demand for trained workers.

Among other things, students will learn to bathe patients, make beds, keep records, first aid and basic medical terminology.

They will also learn about worker-patient relationships and professional ethics, Parker said.

The students will receive scholastic credits for the course.

Benton Gives Nod To Industry Tax Assistance

The Benton township board of trustees last night formally endorsed the principle of tax incentives to stimulate industrial growth, and then set a public hearing for March 18 on a request for partial tax exemption by Mudar, Inc., 1394 East Empire avenue.

Mudar asks that the property tax levy on a new addition be replaced by an industrial facilities tax. This would be 50 per cent of the total property tax on the new addition valuation, for 12 years.

The exemption would be possible under the Michigan plant Rehabilitation and Industrial Development Districts Act of 1974, according to Charles Schrenk, director of economic development for the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Mudar's Benton township plant is a manufacturer of vinyl covered shelves and commercial display units. Mudar's exemption request is for a recently-completed 7,000 square-foot addition to accommodate a new line of shelving.

Schrenk told the trustees the law is to stimulate industrial expansion and create new jobs in Michigan. Schrenk said the township soon will receive similar requests from Clark Equipment Co. and Consumers Asphalt Co.

Schrenk illustrated the new state incentives efforts, saying that between 1962 and 1973, Texas through incentives gained 180,000 manufacturing jobs. He said Michigan over the same span lost 32,000 manufacturing jobs.

Attending the public hearing will be representatives of Benton Harbor Area schools and Berrien county government which along with the township are taxing units.

Supervisor Martin Lane said if all goes well at the hearing, the board on April 15 probably can take final local action on Mudar's request and others that may arise.

The first tax exemption for expansion in Berrien county under the new state act was granted recently to Independent Steel Castings Co., New Buffalo township.

In two other tax matters, the board tabled until March 15 final action on ordinances giving tax relief to Hull's Terra and Berrien Homes, which are low and middle-income apartment projects.

The ordinances would abolish property taxes and substitute an annual service fee. The fee would be 15 per cent of 95 per cent of gross rent income. The board last October okayed a resolution to give Hull's Terra a tax abatement. It later was determined that this should be in ordinance form. A service fee in lieu of property taxes is provided for under the Michigan Housing Development Act. Both apartments were financed under this act.

In other areas, the board approved the concept of a community emergency service to operate ambulance service. The board, however, tabled action on joining with other area governmental units in articles of incorporation. Lane said under a plan, the emergency service would entail hospitals running an ambulance service.

Lane noted that while the area now has two ambulance services, both appear on shaky financial ground.

In a letter, John Stubblefield, president of Peoples State Bank, St. Joseph, praised township police for their efforts to assist in the apprehension of two bank robbery suspects last month. Robbed was the Scottsdale branch of the St. Joseph bank.

In another police matter, the board referred to committee a request from Chief Joseph Sieber for radar equipment, to cost $1,375.

Approved were an auction license at 1640 Paw Paw avenue for James Bryan and B.C. Butts, and a peddler's license at 2158 Red Arrow highway for Mrs. Carrie Broadwater and Mrs. Pat Thornton. Also approved were a tag day sale May 3 for Fairplain Youth Baseball association, and March 21-22 for the Easter Seal Society.

New Committee Forming

An environmental health committee connected with the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association will be organized tonight during a meeting at 7 in Room 317 of Hahnemann hall at Andrews university, according to Rod Goodchild, regional health planner for the association. When formed the committee will study sewage treatment plants and waste discharge into rivers and streams, Goodchild said. The association operates in Berrien, Van Buren and Cass counties.

Flag For Buchanan School

BUCHANAN — An official bicentennial flag was presented to Buchanan high school by the Berrien county bicentennial commission in ceremonies here yesterday. Paul McAdams, a member of the county commission said the presentation was part of a program initiated by the county bicentennial commission to give a flag to every public and private high school in Berrien county.

Board To Hear Reports

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The board of directors of Berrien County Action, Inc., is scheduled to hear reports tonight at its monthly meeting, at 7:30, in the administration building of Andrews university. Reports are scheduled from Samella Harper on recommendations of the nominating committee, Bill Joseph on personnel, Melvin Farmer on finances, and Mrs. Helen Ford, executive director. Mrs. Nora Jefferson, chairman of Berrien County Action, said the meeting is open to the public.

Decatur Fire Chief Chosen

DECATUR — Chester Tortorelli has been re-elected chief of the Decatur volunteer fire department for 1978 in the department's annual election. Other officers elected were: Jake Hoekstra, assistant chief; Arthur Hayes, captain; Jack Conklin, lieutenant; and Douglas Hazzard, secretary-treasurer.

Penetrator Study Mostly Exercise

Schriver said then the highway department hired the private firm to make the impact study for $100,000. Usually the department conducts such studies with its own personnel.

In response to requests by Twin-Cats and by the Berrien County Planning commission that the so-called "River route" be added to the environmental impact study the highway department Friday was just short of a flat refusal. They suggested the traffic to be served by the penetrator does not warrant the added costs of the River route, and that consideration of this route would entail a long delay in the penetrator project.

They did tell Twin-Cats they would obtain a letter from highway department head John Woodard spelling out future growth possibilities of the area and how that would apply to possible future consideration of the River route.

The River route would follow the old railroad bed into St. Joseph along the west bank of the St. Joseph river. The route planned by the highway department follows the railroad bed nearly to Niles avenue, then turns north away from the railroad to make a junction with Niles avenue at Hilltop road.

In connection with the River route, the Benton Harbor city commission Monday night adopted a resolution supporting the Twin-Cats request that the River route be studied. The resolution indicated the commission wanted to express support for recognition of the community's voice in determining transportation plans.

Michigan Lawmaker Asks Gas Tax Share

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A state lawmaker wants the federal government to let Michigan collect a portion of any increase in the national gasoline tax.

Under the plan put forth

Tuesday by Sen. Richard Allen, R-Alma, the state would raise its gasoline tax by five cents a gallon if the federal government agreed to lower its increase in Michigan by four cents.

The state would thus get five cents per gallon while state residents paid only one cent extra in taxes.

The plan would require federal and state approval.

Allen said some $200 million would be added to the state Treasury annually by the plan. He suggested, two cents per gallon go to mass transit systems, two cents to local roads, half a cent to rails and half a cent to non-motorized transportation, like bicycling.

Toll Reaches 41

Fifteen other bodies were removed from the train earlier Tuesday. The first three coaches of the train were telescoped when it ran past a station in the financial district last Friday and slammed into a stone wall. Eighty other passengers were injured, five of them seriously.

Hassle Over St. Joe Sign Ends With Compromise

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

The manager of the St. Joseph Burger Chef has agreed to unplug his portable sign and the St. Joseph city attorney has agreed to dismiss charges that the sign is in violation of the city's uniform sign code.

Douglas W. Bailey, 25, co-owner and manager of the drive-in at 2901 Niles avenue, was charged with violation of the St. Joseph electric sign ordinance in January. He pleaded innocent.

The charge involved a portable sign with a flashing yellow arrow that was placed below the large Burger Chef sign. St. Joseph City Atty. A.G. (Pete)

Preston said at the time that the sign was too tall, improperly wired and put up without a permit.

At the time Bailey charged that the city's main concern was not the code violation but an alleged unattractiveness of the sign.

Atty. Preston said the charge was dismissed because Bailey agreed to keep the yellow arrow unlit and to make wiring changes.

Mentally Ill Are 'Hosed'

DETROIT (AP) — Mentally ill inmates at the Wayne County Jail were disciplined on various occasions by hosing with fire extinguishers, jail officials admitted in court Tuesday. The three-judge County Circuit Court panel hearing the case immediately issued a permanent restraining order against the hosing. A temporary order has been in effect since Jan. 5. Adam Angelas, an attorney representing Sheriff William Lucas, who administers the jail, said staff members involved in the hosing will be brought before jail trial boards.

IRS Sues For 'War Tax'

FREMONT, Mich. (AP) — A decision not to pay war taxes because they loathe all wars means a Fremont veterinarian and his wife may lose their home and his office. Addie Snyder said the Internal Revenue Service plans to sell the property within 30 days to cover about $3,000 in back taxes. Mrs. Snyder and her husband, Paul, blame the 1971 invasion of Cambodia for turning a pair of "hard working Republicans" into tax protestors. "We had tried to ignore the war up to that time. But we have withheld a percentage of our taxes since 1971," she reported. That percentage was based upon the Defense Department's share of the national budget.

Middle Class Burden Grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax burden on middle-income American families has doubled over the past two decades, according to a newly released government report. The study by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations shows a bigger tax bite for wealthier families too, but the rate of increase is smaller.

U.S., Iran Ink Trade Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil-rich Iran will buy eight nuclear power plants from the United States over the next five years as part of a $15-billion trade agreement that was described as the largest ever. Iran's purchases from the United States will include materials for factories, apartment buildings and hospitals.

X-Rays Not So Risky?

CHICAGO (AP) — Routine X-ray examinations of pregnant women may not be as risky for unborn babies as previously believed, three University of Chicago radiologists say. In the 1950s and 1960s, studies found that if women were X rayed during pregnancy or before conception, their babies were more likely to have cancer or other diseases and a high mortality rate. The university radiologists argue, however, that these studies were biased because the mothers were X rayed for existing medical problems which may have led to defects in the babies. Drs. Bernard E. Oppenheim, Melvin L. Griem and Paul Meier present their contradicting evidence in the March issue of Radiology, the journal of the Radiological Society of North America.

Old Depot Revival Is Envisioned

Converting Eyesore Bicentennial Wish At South Haven

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — Community leaders here hope to revive a part of old-America during the 1976 Bicentennial celebration by restoring the former railroad depot.

Time and neglect have rendered the depot, which is located in a history-rich area along the Black river near the Dyckman avenue bridge, more an eyesore than a pleasant memory of the past, city officials have said.

MAJOR RESTORATION ENVISIONED

Proponents of the plan envision a major restoration of the exterior of the building while remodeling the interior for possible use as a reception center for tourists, a gathering place for community groups, perhaps a marine museum or possibly an exhibition area for artists.

Mayor Elizabeth Davis, a key proponent of the drive points to the historic significance of the area where the depot is located as one reason for the effort. The depot once greeted thousands of people who ventured to South Haven aboard Lake Michigan passenger ships. From the ships the travelers made their way to other Michigan communities aboard trains, she said. The railroad tracks for the most part have since been removed and the main part of the old depot converted into a print shop. The other portion of the depot now houses a restaurant. The restaurant would not be affected in the proposed project.

LOCATED AT KEY JUNCTION

Mayor Davis noted that the depot is located at the junction of the South Haven community. "Every tourist passes this area enroute to the city's north beach and most of our citizens go past it regularly on their way downtown."

The mayor also recognizes that the depot is located in an area that is becoming a blight, saying "Renovation will go a long way toward sprucing up one whole section of the town."

The main obstacle confronting South Haven's Bicentennial commission, sponsor of the restoration move, and city officials is determining the rightful owner of the land where the depot is located.

The deed for the property was executed more than 100 years ago and some believe there was a clause stipulating that the right of ownership would revert back to the original property owners should the railroad no longer use the land.

STATE AGENCY INTERESTED, TOO

City officials have been working through the Michigan Highway department on the land acquisition question because the state agency is also interested in acquiring the former railroad right-of-way as a trail between South Haven and Kalamazoo for non-motorized vehicles.

Initially, state officials cautioned the city against seeking the depot, fearing it might jeopardize its attempts to obtain the entire right-of-way. However, the state now endorses the city's efforts, according to Mayor Davis.

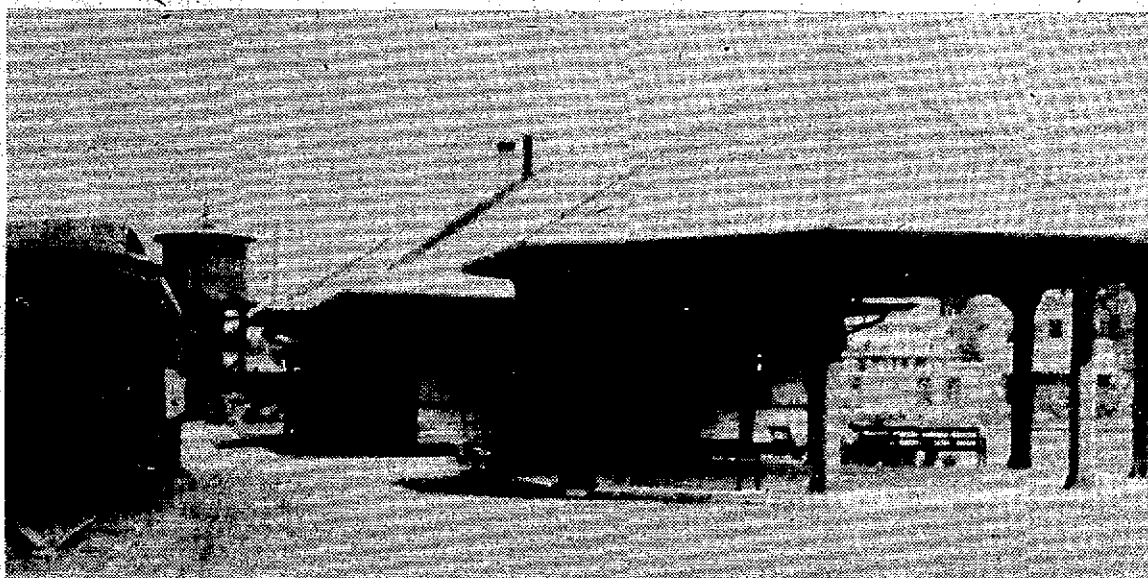

"The state agrees that a renovated depot would be an asset as a terminal point to the nonmotorized trail," said Mayor Davis.

Once the title to the property is cleared and the right of access is granted city officials will seek to have the area declared a historical site.

FUNDING NEEDS EXPLORATION

Funding the project is another dimension that hasn't been fully explored according to Mayor Davis. However, she believes grants would be available from outside sources as part of the nation's Bicentennial commemoration.

Estimates for undertaking the renovation have ranged from

AS IT USED TO BE: South Haven community leaders hope to restore former railroad depot, located along Black river near Dyckman avenue bridge, South Haven, for 1976 Bicentennial celebration. Portion of depot, which has been converted into restaurant, will remain, according to proposed plans.

$12,000 to $30,000.

Mayor Davis stresses that the project will be as much for year-round residents as the tourists.

Proposal foresees uses of building as reception center for tourists, gathering place for community groups, a marine museum or possibly exhibition area for artists. Lawton Gives Pay Boosts

LAWTON — Pay increases amounting to $6,310 for nine Lawton village officials or employees were approved by the Lawton village council last night.

Most of the wages increases were retroactive as of Saturday. Village Clerk Barbara Weurding received a pay increase of $870 from $7,350 to $8,320. Six fulltime village employees were awarded an eight-cent per hour boost for each quarter of the year as a cost of living adjustment.

Richard Irons, village police chief, and Keith Welburn, superintendent of public works, received base pay boosts 26 cents per hour plus the cost of living adjustments.

The two men's hourly wage rate increased from $4.25 to $4.59 and $4.66 to $5, respectively.

Two part-time police officers will receive a 12-cent pay hike from $3.73 to $3.85 per hour beginning June 1.

Mrs. Roy Noble, who works part-time in the clerk's office, received an hourly increase of 35 cents to $3.35 per hour retroactive to Saturday and another 15-cent increase effective Sept. 1.

The council agreed to continue to pay for a $5,000 life insurance policy for each employee and for unemployment compensation.

Village treasurer, assessor and council members did not receive pay hikes.

In other areas, the council scheduled a budget hearing for March 18 at 7:15 p.m. in the clerk's office.

Election workers for the March 10 general election were approved. Mrs. Harold Slover is the chairman and the other workers include Mrs. Richard Irons, Mrs. Irene McKeely, Mrs. Dorothy Teall, Mrs. Donald Price and Mrs. Wally Bauer.

Village President James

(Hal) Moon told the council that he has not been able to find anyone interested in acting as the village's bicentennial chairman. He asked that if anyone is interested in the position, he or she should contact him.

The council reported that it approved a request that $25,000 in federal revenue sharing funds in next year's budget be set aside for water line and sewer treatment construction purposes. Action was taken in February.

'Welcome' Party For Ray Mittans

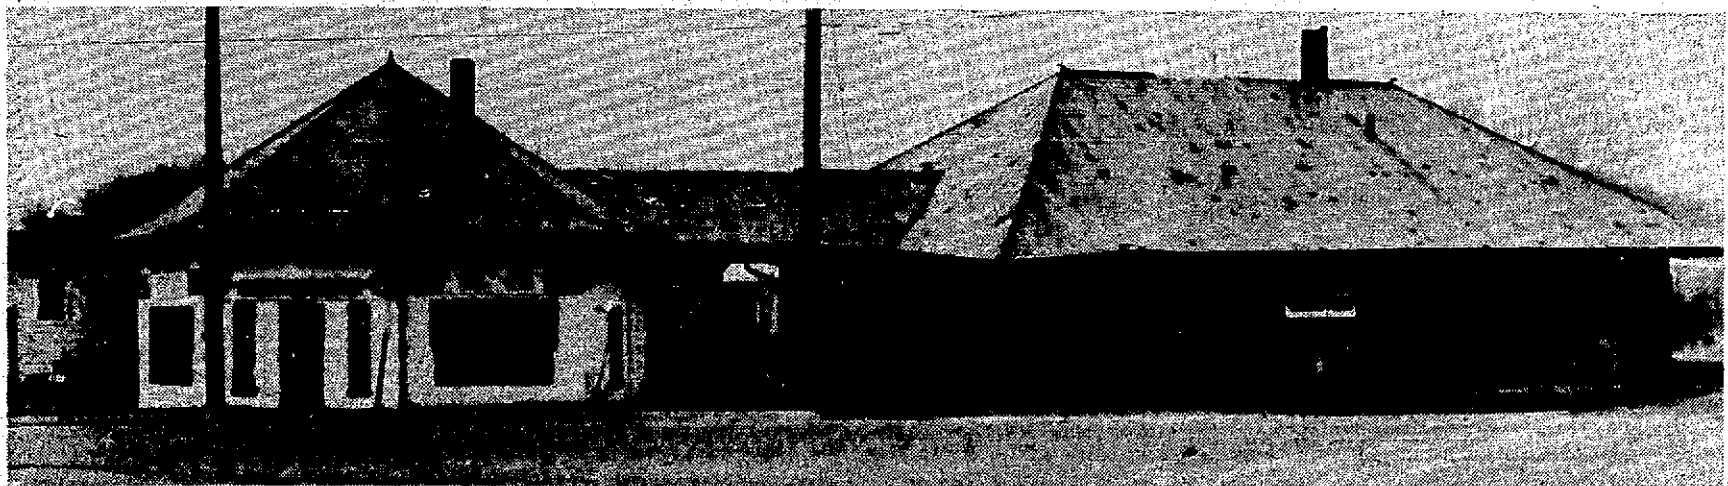

NILES — State Rep. and Mrs. Ray Mittan will be guests of honor at a "Welcome to Niles" party Saturday night.

The party will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Heidelberg restaurant at Niles.

Mittan recently moved from Benton Harbor to Niles, in the southern portion of his 44th District. He cited crime in Benton Harbor as a major reason for moving.

While Mittan is a Republican, the welcome party is planned as a non-political event, sponsored by representatives of both parties. Heading up plans are: Ralph Tuttle, a member of the Berrien Republican executive committee, and Clayton Hemphill, a Niles alderman, who is a Democrat.

Tuttle said tickets are $5 each, and may be purchased at the door, from Tuttle or Hemphill, or Niles City Clerk Donna Fouts. Tuttle said a buffet dinner will be served and there will be music and dancing. At least 100 people are expected, it was reported.

Incumbent Loses

ALLEGAN — John Funk, a Democrat, yesterday defeated Robert Immink, Republican incumbent, in a special election for district five commissioner to the Allegan county board of commissioners. Unofficial vote totals had Funk receiving 331 votes and Immink, 283. The district covers the townships of Salem, Valley, Heath and Overisel.

Funk's margin of victory came in Salem township where he outpolled Immink by a total vote of 171 to 55. Immink was the leading vote getter in Valley and Overisel townships, but by small margins. Funk also captured Heath township, by a small margin.

Funk, 44, a Salem township farmer, formerly served on the rural Plainview school board and was a member of the directors of the Farmers Home administration in the county. He is married and has a grown son.

Immink, 46, of Hamilton, a farmer was appointed to the board following the November death of Kenneth Rybrandt of Dorr. He had won a Feb. 4 GOP primary election for nomination to the district's seat. Funk is now the second Democrat on the 12-member board.

AS IT IS: South Haven's former railroad depot now houses restaurant, octagonal building, and print shop. Depot once greeted people who traveled to area by water and rail. City planners propose to restore print shop for Bicentennial celebration. (Tom Renner photo)

Gaels Clip Camden-Frontier 70-64

Free Throws, Rock Save Galien

By DAVE DELANEY
Staff Sports Writer

STURGIS — Galien's super free throw act came to the Gaels' rescue once again here Tuesday night.

Out-field goalied by two, Galien shot a deadly 66 per cent at the free throw line to down Camden-Frontier 70-64 in a first round Class D regional basketball tilt.

Another major factor in the Gaels' victory was the outstanding performance of 6-3 senior Dave Rock who pumped in a game and career-high 29 points.

In the district semi-final game, Rock tossed in 25 points — his best showing until last night.

"Rock has sure taken a lot of pressure off the others," said Gaels coach Mike Heckathorn. "It was a super job by him. He's decided to relax and really play basketball."

Rock scored on numerous long-range shots, and was just as accurate when working his way to the basket when in close. He sank 11 of 15 field goals for a sizzling 73 per cent average.

He also led team rebounding with 12, 11 of which he scooped off the defensive boards — another personal best for him.

Camden-Frontier's attack was unusual in that the Redskins relied almost exclusively on perimeter shooting — which was often effective for them. Especially in the first half, Camden rarely picked up points from inside.

Camden dominated both field goal shooting and rebounding while bowing out of tournament play with a 17-5 record.

"The big difference was when we went cold in the third quarter," said Redskins coach Don Eby. "That was the turning point of the game."

Eby referred to a near-three minute stretch early in the third period when neither team could manage a field goal. The game was tied at 38-38 during this span. Both teams then perked up, with Galien managing a tenuous 30-30 lead entering the last stanza.

The game began with the teams trading baskets and battling to a 6-6 tie. Behind Rock's 11 points, the Gaels eventually surged to a 19-14 lead after the first eight minutes of play.

The Redskins were well established in their pattern of bombing the basket from the perimeter already in the first stanza.

Camden-Frontier trailed the entire second quarter until Gary Franson scored a three-point play to give the Redskins a 39-37 advantage going into the locker room at intermission.

The game saw-sawed back and forth during the wild and woolly third period in which the scored became knotted up six times.

Galien junior Mike Kuntz led all scorers this quarter with seven points.

Redskin center Stacey Tarr tied the game at 52 early in the last period. However, the Gaels then ripped off eight straight points with Rock bagging four of them. Eby then motioned for a Camden time out to regroup, however his squad was never again able to threaten for the lead.

Rock was the dominant figure again for the Gaels the last quarter, going a perfect two for two from the floor and four for four from the foul line. His point a minute performance this stanza led scorers from both clubs.

It was Rock's final two free throws with 2:11 showing on the clock that sent Galien into a 10 point lead, 64-54. A minute and a half later, the rangy senior left the game to a standing ovation.

Three other Gaels joined Rock in double figures. Don Kooy had 14 points, all but two of them coming the first half. Mike Kuntz had 11 points, Dale Luther just one field goal — but 10 points.

The Redskins placed three in double digits, led by Franson's 17 points.

The winners canned 25 of 55 field goals (46 per cent) and paired this with 20 of 23 free throws. The Redskins hit on 27 of 69 field goals (39 per cent) and made 10 of 15 free throws for 67 per cent.

Galien kept turnovers to seven, while Camden-Frontier made five. Rebounding went to the losers 35-34. Kooy had 10.

With the victory, Galien vaults into the regional championship game here Friday night (7:30) against the winner of tonight's Gobles-Mendon contest. The Gaels are 19-4 with last night's win.

Milwaukee Isn't Dead Yet

Bucks Gain Ground In Rout Of Pistons

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks, given up by many for dead, kicked a few nails from their coffin Tuesday night.

Now it's the Detroit Pistons and Phoenix Suns who are hearing the Bucks' footsteps.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 27 points and Bob Dandridge 26, while George Thompson contributed 20—four under his season high—and superb defense on Detroit's Dave Bing as the Bucks crushed the Pistons 101-83, 0.

The Bucks remain in fourth place in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division, but closed to within 1½ games of Detroit in the battle for third and a possible wild card spot.

Moreover, they gained an edge on Detroit in the important loss column, boosting their record to 30-34 to the Pistons' 34-35.

Phoenix, the other third place team in the Western Conference, is 28-35 after losing 103-98 to Kansas City Omaha. The top two teams in each division and the third place team with the best record gain playoff spots.

"Everything fell into place," exclaimed Bucks Coach Larry Costello. "It was a very big game, a pressure game. But the last five or six games you can see what's there."

"We're playing our game," he said. "We had the players in early tonight and we talked about what we have to do. We were geared for it."

The Pistons had swamped the Bucks 104-84 in Detroit last Wednesday, but this time got only 13 points from Bob Lanier and six from Bing, their leading scorers.

Dandridge led a flurry that boosted Milwaukee's margin from 26-25 after one quarter to 46-33 in the first seven minutes of the second. The lead mounted to 85-59 and 87-61 before both clubs emptied their benches in the last quarter.

"We killed ourselves with our defense," the 6-foot-11 Lanier said. "We weren't getting back at all and they got too many easy shots."

"Lanier didn't hurt us all night," Costello said. "He got some layups when we didn't cover for Kareem, but that's about all. Bing is always a big threat, but George put good pressure on him."

"I tried to keep him (Bing) from doing what he does well—penetrating, then pulling up and shooting," Thompson said. "I overplayed him to the right and tried to take that away from him."

"This was probably our best running game all around," he said. "The big guys were doing a good job getting the ball out. I guess the running game made the difference for us."

The maligned Cornell Warner grabbed 17 rebounds and Abdul-Jabbar 10 as the Bucks dominated the boards 53-40. They also outshot the Pistons 56.8 to 36.0.

The Bucks and Phoenix each have 18 games to play and Detroit 13.

Thompson, who replaced injured Jim Price as a starter last month, said he and rookie Gary Brokaw gradually are learning to work together in the backcourt.

"It takes time, but I think we have time," Thompson said. "We have just as good a chance as any of the other teams of making the playoffs."

Brokaw agreed there is cause for encouragement, but cautioned the Bucks' winning streak is just two games. "We were up for this game, but it takes more than one game to know whether we've got it together or not," he said. "Last week they (Detroit) beat us by 20 points. Anything can happen in this league."

The Bucks host Seattle Thursday night.

DETROIT (AP) — Porter 7-4-18, Rowe 6-0-1, Lanier 6-1-2, Bing 2-2-6, Ford 1-0-2, McHale 2-2-2, Thompson 10-4-20, McGlocklin 2-0-4, Reslani 0-0-0, Wesley 2-1-3, M. Davis 3-0-6, Kubiarski 0-0-0, Williams 0-1-2, 1. Totals: 46-9-17.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dandridge 17-27-26, Warner 2-0-2-4, Abdul-Jabbar 12-3-4-37, Brokaw 3-2-4-8, Thompson 10-0-4-20, McGlocklin 2-0-4, Reslani 0-0-0, Wesley 2-1-3, M. Davis 3-0-6, Kubiarski 0-0-0, Williams 0-1-2, 1. Totals: 46-9-17.

Fouled out: none. Total fouls: Detroit 16, Milwaukee 19. A: 10,375.

Big Crowd Sees Boston Win 8-0 Caps' Fans Impress Bruins

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
There haven't been many reasons to cheer the Washington Capitals this season. The team has won six of 66 games, given up 339 goals — nearly six per game — and managed to score only 145 times.

Few positive things could be said for their 8-0 loss to the Boston Bruins Tuesday night, except that 13,273 people showed up to cheer their hapless heroes. And that really impressed Bruins Coach Don Cherry.

"This is going to be a good franchise some day. When a team gets support like that, they've got to get better," said Cherry. "It's something. The people stick with these guys even when they're losing 6-0 or 7-0. They aren't getting on the players, and that's a heckuva sign for the future."

Despite the shutout, the cheers remained loud and clear at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md. It has been that way all year. The Capitals, losingest team in pro hockey, are outdrawing the national Basketball Association Washington Bullets, with whom they share their home arena. And the Bullets are the winningest team in the NBA.

One of the high points in a dismal opening National Hockey League season was the expansion Capitals' 3-3 tie with the Bruins the last time Boston visited.

"We outshot them 46-15 last time," Cherry recalled. "But this time the puck went in."

It went in eight times. Ken Hodge scored twice, Phil Esposito scored as usual, while Don Marcotte, Dave Forbes, Bobby Schmautz, Wayne Cashman and Hank Nowak had the other tallies for Boston. Bobby Orr collected two assists.

A loss by shutout is nothing new to the Capitals, who suffered that fate for the 11th time this season.

Elsewhere, the Minnesota North Stars tripped the Vancouver Canucks 6-4 and the Los Angeles Kings dropped the Kansas City Scouts 7-4.

Minnesota blew a three-goal lead, then came back on a second-period goal by Dennis Hextall to top Vancouver and hand the Canucks their fifth loss in a seven-game road trip.

Vancouver Coach Phil Maloney yanked starting goalie Gary Smith in favor of Ken Lockett because Smith "looked tired and disgusted. He's played 60 games this season and I guess he's beginning to show some wear and tear."

The North Stars breezed to a 3-0 lead on goals by Norm Gratton, Craig Cameron and Bill Goldsworthy, saw Vancouver tie it behind Garry Monahan, Andre Boudrias and Gerry O'Flaherty, then pulled in front on Hextall's goal.

Henry Boucha made it 5-3, Boudrias cut it to 5-4 with his second goal, but Goldsworthy iced it with his second of the game into an empty net.

Juha Widing scored three goals and Mike Murphy chipped in four assists to pace the Los Angeles triumph which brought the Kings within two points of the idle Montreal Canadiens, who lead Division 3.

Bob Murdoch, Terry Harper, Mike Corrigan and Butch Goring also scored for the Kings. Wilf Palement had two goals while Norm Dube and Ed Gilbert scored one each for the Scouts.

Texas A&M Nears Title

Duquesne Knocked Out Of Tourney Berth

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Arkansas are still alive in the Southwest Conference basketball race. Well, actually, Texas A&M looks in the best of health while Texas Tech and Arkansas are holding on for dear life.

Texas Tech and Arkansas were put on the sick list after Texas A&M's 100-77 victory over SMU Tuesday night.

Coupled with Baylor's 68-55 upset over Texas Tech, the victory gave the Aggies undisputed possession of the Southwest lead with one game to go in the regular season. They can win the title by beating Texas this Saturday.

By virtue of its loss, Texas Tech dropped a game behind Texas A&M, tied for second with Arkansas. The Razorbacks kept their slim hopes alive by beating Texas 68-56.

"There's no chance we'll get caught looking ahead (to the NCAA playoffs) this Saturday," said Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf. "Texas is very capable of beating us if they play well. If they beat us, it will be because they outplay us, not because we are looking ahead or choke."

Gerald Myers, the Texas Tech coach, was not resigned to failure, despite his team's tenuous position.

"We've still got a mathematical chance and all we can do Saturday is beat TCU and hope A&M gets beat," he said.

In other games Tuesday night, La Salle beat Bucknell 85-74 and Rider trimmed Temple 78-65 in the opening round of the East Coast Conference playoffs. Cincinnati whipped Duquesne 72-70 knocking the Dukes out of the running for the NCAA playoffs.

Because Duquesne lost, West Virginia was given a berth in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic conference's regional tournament at Morgantown, W. Va.

Louisville, the nation's third-ranked team, whipped Memphis State 84-78; Holy Cross defeated Connecticut 81-66; Georgetown routed Wheeling 105-60; Manhattan stopped Seton Hall 71-60; Ohio beat Penn State 79-71 and Kentucky State, the nation's No. 1 college division team, took Carson-Newman 75-64 in the first round of the national Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 24 tournament.

Truhn Commended

Dennis Truhn, golf course superintendent at Point O'Woods, has been commended by the Western Golf Association for his work in preparing and maintaining the course for the 1974 Western Amateur tournament.

The commendation from WGA president Thomas A. Reynolds Jr. was presented at the annual meeting of the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America in New Orleans.

Harbor Runners Post Fast Time

YPSILANTI — Benton Harbor's 880 relay team posted the second best time of the season in Michigan at the United States Track and Field Federation indoor meet at Eastern Michigan Tuesday night.

Alex Williams, Harry Williams, Maurice Burton and Jeff "Cisco" Hicks sprinted to a 1:35.4 clocking while coming in second.

Just three weeks ago at Western Michigan, Harry Williams, Burton and Hicks teamed with Joe Brown for the state's best male relay time of 3:30 flat.

Baylor Signed

MIAMI (AP) — Three members of the Baltimore Orioles remain unsigned, now that outfielder Don Baylor has agreed to terms for the 1975 baseball season.

Still holding out are catchers Earl Williams and Andy Etchebarren, and second baseman Bobby Grich.

'M' Upsets Colorado In WCHA Opener

Champ Gophers Playoff Winner

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — University of Minnesota hockey Coach Herb Brooks says playoff competition brings out the best in players.

"The kids show their true personalities now," said Brooks after his defending national champion Gophers routed Minnesota-Duluth 6-0 in first round play of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs. "It might not have been an artistic success, but we were working hard and things finally broke for us."

In other WCHA playoff games, Michigan upset Colorado college 4-3, Wisconsin trimmed Michigan State 5-4 and Michigan Tech shutout Notre Dame 2-0.

Duluth's diminutive net-minder, 5-foot-6, 145-pound Rob Little, kept the Bulldogs in contention for two periods, but the continuous Gopher assaults finally overwhelmed Little.

"We didn't get good goaltending the last period," said Duluth Coach Terry Shercliffe. "We felt pretty good after two periods, but then everything caved in."

Minnesota sparking Mike Polich drilled his 24th goal of the year, scoring from the left side of the blue line, with 30 seconds left in the second period to lift Minnesota to a 2-0 advantage. "That was the big goal," said Brooks. "It came late in the period and helped loosen us up. I think both teams were tight mentally."

The top-seeded Gophers, who had taken a 1-0 on Pat Phippen's 20th goal of the season, exploded in the final period with four scores.

Tom Vannelli scored 80 seconds into the third period. Polich converted a rebound for his 25th of the year, and Bryan Frederickson and Robbie Harris concluded the scoring.

"They scored six goals, so it can be done," said Shercliffe. "We'll change goalies and give it hell. But, one thing in their favor, they are an awfully good hockey team and really play defense which is going to make it hard."

The Minnesota defense complemented the surehanded netminding of senior goalie Larry Thayer, who recorded his second shutout of the season and boosted his record to 16-2.

"We've got to be happy to score six goals on Duluth," said Brooks. "We're at half-time with a 6-0 lead."

All teams play tonight in the final game of the WCHA's first-round "most-goals" playoffs, with winners advancing to semifinal play Saturday.

Goals by Angie Moretto, Randy Neal, Rob Palmer and Pat Hughes in the second period carried Michigan to its victory over Colorado College, the No. 3 seed in the league's playoffs. Mike Haedrich, Pat Lawson and Jim Warner scored for Colorado College.

Michigan goalie Robbie Moore had 39 saves while Eddie Mio stopped 26 for the Tigers.

League runnerup Michigan Tech got first period goals from Steve Jensen and Stu Ostlund and goalie Jim Warden turned in his fourth shutout of the season.

Wisconsin rallied from a 3-2 deficit after two periods to take a one goal advantage into its battle tonight with MSU. Craig Norwich, Don DePrez and Bob Lundeen scored the badgers' final period goals. Brendon Moroney and Darrell Rice each scored twice for Michigan State.

NO GAIN Kalamazoo Hackett's Rick Barta seems to be trying to gain yardage through River Valley's Mitch Coffman (left) and Dave North as he lugs the basketball as a football. The Mustang defense once again was superlative in Valley's 54-44 victory over the Irish Tuesday night in the Portage Northern Class C regional. (Pete Mitchell photo)

HE'S 40, OVERWEIGHT

Elvis May Be Sick Man

Q: I read that Elvis Presley is buying the Robert Vesco jet plane. Doesn't sound like he is very sick to me. — M.W., Nashville, Tenn.

A: That story got a big play in the press but it has since been denied by Presley followers. The big story is that Elvis, 40 and overweight, may be suffering from a serious liver ailment. We'll report more soonest.

Q: Is Audrey Hepburn pregnant as rumored? — Y.W., Cleveland, Ohio.

A: We're not sure but the man who dressed her for years, designer Hubert Givenchy, says she is. If so, this would seem to put the nix on all those stories that the retired star's marriage to her Roman doctor is on the friz. They have two children already. One is Audrey's from her marriage to Mel Ferrer.

Q: Suppose you believe that the ill of the body can best be cured by mental concentration and mystic power. What hospital could you go to? — J.S., Rasmak, Va.

A: A new hospital, due to open this summer in England where "fringe" medicine will be practiced, may be the place for you. We'll report more soonest.

With such celebrities as ex-Beatle George Harrison and famed violinist Yehudi Menuhin donating money and promising patronage, the hospital will offer faith healing, homeopathy and acupuncture on a regular basis under the direction of Dr. Chandra Sharma. Just in case, the institute staff will also be trained in orthodox medicine.

ROCK QUICKIES: David Bowie and Mick Jagger misbehaved over a check at New York's Cafe Carlyle and were asked by the management to leave. . . . Bette Midler's indecisions regarding her career resulted in a loused-up last recording session. It may all have to be done over. . . . One of the original Supremes, Florence Ballard, is suing Motown while living on welfare in Detroit. . . . Cherry Vanilla, the new underground sensation who dresses like a tart and recites poetry in nightclubs, says David Bowie's bisexual "image" was all just that — image. Cherry thinks David's quite a little man. Q: Could you tell a couple of teenage girls whether Caroline Kennedy is popular with the boys or not? — K. McV., Rochester, N.Y.

A: She seems to be. As a matter of fact, Caroline's photograph is the only girl's picture in the 1975 year book of Manhattan's Collegiate school. Caroline's brother John goes there, as well as her cousin Steve Smith.

DONKEY IN THE DOG HOUSE: The Democrats' national chairman, Robert Strauss, is the new target of the Gay Activists. Since it was printed that a typically friendly social greeting by Texan Strauss is, "Well, if this isn't the biggest collection of fags I've even seen in my life!" —

Strauss has been bombarded with an avalanche of protests for putting down gays and demands that the Democratic party make gays active in politics.

Key Filibuster Test At Hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key test is at hand in the Senate battle over whether to make it easier to curb filibusters.

A crucial vote was set for today on stopping debate and bringing up a proposal that would permit filibusters to be choked off by three-fifths of the senators voting.

BY PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken and businessmen gave a frosty welcome Tuesday to federal officials who say 1,400 miles of railroad tracks in Michigan are too unprofitable to operate.

State Agriculture Department Director B. Dale Ball said the track is so vital it should be nationalized instead of abandoned.

Milliken told U.S. Railway Administration President Ed Jordan he wants at least two more public hearings on the proposal.

The USRA says the 1,400 miles belonging to the Penn Central and Ann Arbor railroads cannot be included in the Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail), the mechanism created to reorganize bankrupt lines.

Jordan said Conrail has been established to turn a profit and that there is not enough traffic on the 1,400 miles of track.

His remark brought prompt rebuttals from officials attending a state Chamber of Commerce meeting for business leaders and politicians.

"They (USRA) are operating on 1973 data for the Penn Central at a time when people were reluctant to ship by the Pennsy and at a time when many customers were asking for railroad cars but could not get them," protested Michael Davidson, public counsel for Michigan.

Davidson is attached to the Rail Services planning Office of the Interstate Commerce Commission which has been a frequent critic of USRA proposals.

"We cannot possibly accept recommendations which would sever the Chicago-Detroit passenger mainline, terminate virtually all freight service to large parts of the northern lower peninsula, and end service to other communities throughout the state," said Milliken.

Ball said the plan would wipe out farm profits because transportation costs would soar. And he said the federal government should take over rights of way and rail facilities, to keep the lines from being abandoned.

"I know I will be accused of socialism but Michigan agriculture needs these rail lines to remain competitive," said Ball.

Abandoning the 1,400 miles would mean loss of 1,000 jobs, said Paul Tresk a lobbyist for the United Transportation Union.

The 1,400 miles of track would be eligible for federal aid if they are not included in Conrail.

Jordan emphasized the proposal issued last month is subject to change.

USRA recommendations are based on whether the lines are profitable and other factors, such as need. Several officials said the data used to determine whether a line should be excluded from Conrail is incomplete.

State figures, for example, show a line between Rives Junction and Grand Rapids on the Penn Central operated at a profit of $814,000 in 1973. Figures from USRA, which wants the line excluded from Conrail, show the line lost $375,000 the same year.

The reason for the difference is that there are a variety of approaches to determining the financial standing of a particular section of track.

Steering Locks Not Theftproof

BOSTON (AP) — Ford steering column locks are the least effective in preventing car thefts, but none of the locks, are actually theft proof, according to a study done for the Massachusetts Consumers Council.

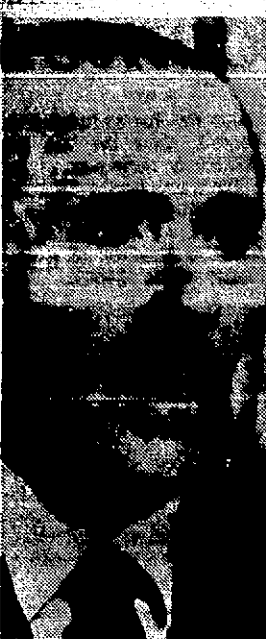

The report by Boston University law student David Barry, a former St. Louis police officer, said, "The only thing holding these locks are a couple of soft metal pins that break off or pop out with very little force."

The Ford locks are the easiest to pop, followed by locks on Chrysler and then the steel-faced locks on General Motors and American Motors, Barry said.

Statistics from the Registry of Motor Vehicles for 1972 show 61 Ford thefts per thousand, compared with 11 per thousand for Chrysler products, eight for General Motors and six for American Motors.

College In Maine Wooing Japanese

By JERRY HARKAVY
Associated Press Writer
HOULTON, Maine (AP) — The "wide open spaces" of northern Maine are a major selling point in a recruiting drive aimed at attracting 100 Japanese students to Ricker College.

Study at a campus which is surrounded by "the nature" is the message emblazoned on Japanese language posters which have been distributed to more than 1,000 secondary and post-secondary schools in Japan.

A 16-page catalogue describing the private liberal arts college includes a photograph of a canoe paddling along an unpopulated stream.

Japanese youngsters are eager to study in a rural environment, says John L. Boye, Ricker's dean of admissions and financial aid, who is directing the international recruitment effort.

"One of the appeals that northern Maine has is that he will be able to get out from under the heavy burden of over-populated cities and study in the wide open spaces," said Boye.

"He said Japanese also like snow... and there's usually four to five feet on the ground here during the height of the winter."

Ricker was on the verge of closing last year because of financial problems, and an influx of Japanese students is viewed as a way to help keep the college afloat.

The school started the current academic year with 270 full-time students and now has 280. Boye said Ricker has balanced its budget and anticipates next fall, not counting those from Japan.

Boye estimates the annual costs for a Japanese student, including plane fare, would run close to $6,000, an amount he describes as competitive with the price of going to a college in Japan.

He said applicants, who must demonstrate fluency in English, will be interviewed in Japan in early April. Those selected would leave Tokyo in July for a summer orientation program, followed by a coastal trip through Maine.

"In Japan, the program is being promoted by an admissions recruiting committee made up of two professors and an art critic who is also host of a nationwide television talk show.

In outlining Ricker's environmental pitch, Boye said private colleges have to seek new ways to recruit students.

"The marketing of a college has completely changed in the last 10 years," he said. "You have to be more aggressive, and you have to use the same marketing techniques that you would use with any product and adapt them to education."

A Tan Means Manual Labor

CHICAGO (AP) — Sunbats are status symbols in some parts of the U.S. where you can afford a vacation in Florida or Jamaica. In Japan, a tan is the sign of a peasant who must work in the fields.

HOUSE

Oil Depletion Allowance Repeal. The House voted 348-163 to repeal the oil and gas depletion allowance retroactive to Jan. 1 this year. The provision would raise oil industry taxes by about $2.5-billion in 1975.

The House attached its depletion-repeal amendment to a $21.3-billion tax-cut bill designed to stimulate economic recovery.

Supporters of the repeal argued that the existing 22 per cent allowance was no longer needed to encourage oil and gas exploration because petroleum prices have risen so steeply. If the amendment were added to the tax-cut bill, they said, Senate oil-industry allies would be reluctant to block the entire measure.

While many representatives endorsed eventual repeal of the depletion allowance, opponents warned that the amendment could jeopardize prompt Senate action on vital needed tax reductions. Opponents also argued that such a step should be taken only after more careful study by congressional committees.

Voting to repeal oil depletion allowance: Blanchard (D), Conyers (D), O'Neill (Majority Leader).

Voting not to repeal oil depletion allowance: Hutchinson (R), Vander Jagt (R), Rhodes (Minority Leader).

Not voting: Brown (R).

Passage of $21-billion Tax Cut. The House voted 317-97 to cut individual and business income taxes by $21-billion, including an $8-billion rebate on 1974 personal income taxes. The bill provided an additional $8-billion reduction in 1975 individual income taxes, along with a $8-billion tax cut for business.

Opponents were opposed to the President Ford's $18-billion tax-cut proposal, which included a $12-billion rebate of 1974 taxes and $4-billion in business tax reductions. More than Ford's plan, the House-passed bill concentrated tax cuts at low and middle-income levels.

Supporters of the House version argued that poorer taxpayers needed more help to cope with inflation and rising unemployment. Because such families were more likely to spend their tax cuts, members argued, the House bill would give the economy a badly needed shot in the arm.

While favoring a tax cut, opponents argued that reductions should be concentrated in a one-shot rebate on 1974 income taxes. By cutting 1975 taxes on a permanent basis, they cautioned, the bill would increase future federal deficits and renew inflationary pressures.

Before passing the bill, the House had attached provisions repealing the oil and gas depletion allowance.

Voting for the $21-billion tax cut: Blanchard (D), Conyers (D), Hutchinson (R), O'Neill (Majority Leader).

Voting against the $21-billion tax cut: Vander Jagt (R), Rhodes (Minority Leader).

Not voting: Brown (R).

F-111 Funds. By a 238-194 vote, the House agreed to an administration request to rescind (not to spend) $122.9-million appropriated in fiscal 1975 for procurement of 12 F-111 fighter bombers.

Proponents of not spending the F-111 funds argued that neither the White House nor the Defense Department saw the need for continued production of the planes and that the administration had not requested the appropriation in the first place. They contended that the funds had been appropriated originally at the instance of members from states where the planes were built.

Opponents maintained that the F-111 was the only viable alternative in the event the B-1 bomber failed flight tests or proved too costly to construct. They also argued that fiscal 1975 funds already spent on F-111 production would be wasted if the remaining funds were not spent.

Voting to spend F-111 funds: Blanchard (D), Conyers (D), Hutchinson (D), Vander Jagt (R), O'Neill (Majority Leader), Rhodes (Minority Leader).

Not voting: Brown (R).

SENATE

Northeast Rail Assistance. The Senate by a 62-30 vote passed a bill to provide an additional $347-million in operating grants and federally guaranteed loans to Northeast and Midwest railroads. The bulk of the money would go to the Penn Central Railroad.

Supporters said the funds were necessary to keep the Penn Central in business and that if the railroad shut down it would adversely affect the economy of the entire country.

Opponents said the bill would move the country a step closer to nationalization of the nation's railroads, and that there would be no end to the annual appropriations that would have to be pumped into the Penn Central to keep it running.

The Senate action cleared the bill for the President.

Voting for railroad assistance: Griffin (R), Hart (D).

With ominous headlines about the imminent collapse of Cambodia dominating the news, there has also been a great deal of flagellation about the nefarious role played by the United States in dragging this friendly, peaceful little country into the war. It is not uncommon to rewrite yesterday's history to suit today's needs, but the Cambodian instance is just a bit too much. The fact is that we no more "enlarged" the war to include Cambodia than General Eisenhower "enlarged" the war when he invaded Normandy in June, 1944. For almost a third of a century the Indochinese Communists (as they once called themselves) have been fighting a war for Indochina. Not just for both Vietnam, but for Laos and Cambodia as well. Ho Chi Minh's clear objective, followed by his successors, was to establish a Communist successor state to French Indochina.

As early as the Geneva conference of 1954 the Cambodian delegate was bitterly complaining about North Vietnamese aggression. Hanoi maintained the fiction that the trouble in Cambodia was caused by autonomous rebels, but when the time came to sign the military agreements (the only things signed at Geneva), he signed for the so-called "Red Khmers." As the war in Vietnam began to heat up in the early 1960s (particularly after the North Vietnamese ignored the Laos neutralization accord of 1962), Hanoi, with its characteristic ruthlessness, moved to consolidate its power along the Laotian and Cambodian borders of the Republic of Vietnam. Several Cambodian provinces (virtually unpopulated) were integrated into the Ho Chi Minh trail, and sanctuaries were set up for the benefit of Communist troops in Vietnam.

The then-ruler of Cambodia, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, began an untricate game designed to maintain the independence of the Khmer kingdom, an ethnic enclave of some five million surrounded by traditional enemies: Thais and Vietnamese. It would take a volume, preferably fiction, to convey the extent of Sihanouk's efforts. One consequence was his willingness to put the telescope to his blind eye when American bombers went after the Cambodian sanctuaries — as long as he had no official knowledge, he would not complain.

But while the Prince was working one side of the street, his wife Monique (a Vietnamese) was working the other. The simplest way to get stuff to the North Vietnamese troops in the South was by boat to Sihanoukville and thence overland to the sanctuaries — the so-called "Sihanouk trail." For years, top American military figures wanted to cut this line by a limited invasion of (already Communist-invaded) Cambodia, claiming that (if memory serves) Hanoi's forces were getting about 6-8 million tons of equipment a year via that route. The State department, opposed to any incursion, downgraded this estimate to some 3-4 million tons. To get ahead of the story, when Sihanouk was toppled and a thorough investigation launched, it turned out that Monique, using the Cambodian army to run her transport, had probably set up the biggest arms-running operation in history, delivering some 10-12 million tons a year. Cambodia had become an arms syndicate that issued postage stamps.

In the spring of 1970 an event occurred which took all hands by surprise. In a sudden convulsion, triggered by the conviction that Sihanouk was selling out his people, the Cambodians threw out the prince and established a republic headed by General Lon Nol. Initially there was enormous popular enthusiasm for this coup, particularly among nationalist students, and Sihanouk wandered off to Peking. Unfortunately, in terms of American war-weariness, the change was about five years late. Thus, in asking military aid for the Cambodians, Secretary of State William Rogers flatly told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that "Administration officials have said repeatedly that the furnishing of aid to the government of Cambodia does not constitute a commitment to see that the government survives."

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Continue Pullback

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were lower today in a continuation of the pullback which began in the final two hours of trading Tuesday.

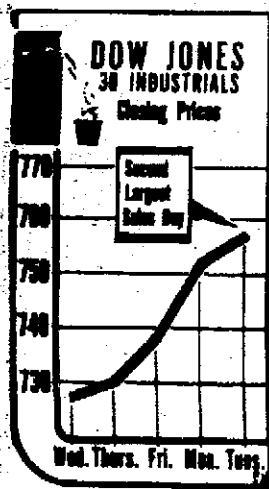

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down almost a point in early trading and losers broadly led gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the profit taking which hit the market late Tuesday in the midst of its second heaviest trading day ever was carrying over into today. Ahead nearly 16 points Tuesday, the Dow pulled back to close up 4.61.

Early prices on the Big Board included Union Carbide, down 1 at 82 1/2, Norfolk Western, down 1/2 at 67, Atlantic Richfield, off 1/2 at 80 1/2, and Allied Chemical, down 1/2 at 36 1/2.

Brokers said Tuesday's rally was fueled by hopes that world oil prices might be headed down, and by the compromise in Washington between President Ford and the Congress over the nation's energy policy.

NYSE volume for the day was 34.14 million shares; second only to the 35.16 million shares which changed hands Feb. 17.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

About Reinvestment Of Stock Dividends

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. I would appreciate a list of companies which permit reinvestment of dividends toward the purchase of new shares.

A. I have no such printed lists, since names are being added constantly. I would suggest you query Chase Manhattan, Bankers Trust and First National City (in New York city), banks which are active in the field.

In addition, you will find that closed-end investment companies as well as, of course, all mutual funds make provisions for such reinvestment of both dividends and capital gains.

Furthermore, I would like to point out that any investor putting money into common shares on the "monthly investment plan" sponsored by the N.Y. Stock Exchange can reinvest dividends in any such Big Board stock.

NEEDS LIST
Q. Please send me a list of Treasury bonds which sell at discount and can be used to pay inheritance taxes at face value.

A. There are about a dozen of these that are still outstanding. Most of these were issued in the 1950s and the early '60s and carry low coupons. They include the 3 1/2s of 1978-83; the 3s of 1985; the 3 1/2s of 1990; 3 1/2s of 1985; the 4s of 1980; the 3 1/2s of 1980; 3 1/2s of 1988; 4 1/2s of 1987-92; the 4s of 1988-93; the 4 1/2s of 1989-94.

Some of these bonds are selling at discounts of as much as 22 per cent from face value. So one can see there is a distinct advantage in using them to pay inheritance taxes at full strength — 100 cents on the dollar.

The conditions for such use are that the bonds must have been owned by the decedent at the time of his death and constitute a part of his estate.

"PUT AND CALL"
Q. Please send me information on the "put and call" market. Is this a better form of investment than mutual funds? My broker told me I would be assured of a 15 per cent profit in puts and calls.

A. You are trying to compare two entirely different forms of financial operations.

Puts and calls are options to sell and buy stock at fixed prices for fixed periods of time. A purchase of mutual fund shares is a method of indirectly investing in many industries with one single purchase. There is absolutely no relationship between the two. Nor is there any medium I know which assures anyone of a 15 per cent profit.

WHY A DELAY?
Q. I submit my municipal bond coupons to my bank a week before the due date, but my account is not credited with the interest until 15 to 30 days after the due date. Friends tell me they are credited on the due date or, at most, 10 days later. Why the delay in my case?

A. I am confused by this entire situation. I don't understand your bank even accepting coupons a week before the due date. Nor do I understand any delay in crediting the account after the coupons are due. Different banks may follow different procedures, but I am in no position to dictate how they should operate.

The standard procedure, as I understand it, is to go into the bank vault on the coupon due date, clip the coupon, and then immediately deposit it in your account. It would seem to me this would cut down a lot of handling and also reduce the risk of losing negotiable coupons.

Discrimination Charged

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A group of black Detroit truckers have charged the state with discrimination saying they are confined to hauling inside Detroit city limits. The state Public Service Commission, which licenses trucks to haul around the state, was labeled as "bigoted and racist," by Richard D. Lockhart Jr., head of the recently formed Minority Trucking Association. Lockhart, 42, and 20 of the Association's 80 members, parked huge semi-trailer trucks on streets ringing the capitol building Tuesday to dramatize their protest. Gov. William Milliken promised the truckers he would investigate their complaints. After meeting with the truckers in his office for about 20 minutes Tuesday afternoon Milliken assured them their complaints would be considered openly, fairly and objectively.

Car Sale 'Surge' Flops

DETROIT (AP) — A last minute sales surge under expiring rebate plans apparently failed to materialize in February as purchases of U.S.-made cars headed for an eight-year low. General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors said Tuesday that sales in the final eight days of February were even lower than the depressed levels of a year ago, when fuel shortages sent the industry into an unprecedented sales slump. Ford Motor Co. was to release its figures today. Analysts predicted Ford sales would be up 4 per cent in the latest period, but down 7 per cent for the month. The analysts said sales of all domestic makes for February and the final period would be the lowest for a February since 1967. Estimates put sales in the final February period at 203,000, an 11 per cent decline from past year's weak total of 227,713. That would put car sales for the month at about 335,000, off 6 per cent from 367,200 last year.

Probe Not Yet Complete

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Attorney General's probe of Lt. Gov. James Damman will not be completed until next week at the earliest, Deputy Atty. Gen. Stanley Steinborn, who is directing the final compilation of material, won't be in the office for about a week because of the death of his mother in Florida, his secretary said. The Damman report will not be completed until after Steinborn returns next Tuesday or Wednesday, she added. Gov. William Milliken asked for an Attorney General's investigation.

Public Can Tell Leaders' Con Job

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "The strongest and most positive force in America is the innate common sense that resides within the nation's consumers," according to a man who has surveyed consumer attitudes and actions for years.

But, Albert Sindlinger wonders, does public and private leadership also possess that quality?

"It is a basic fundamental trait that traditionally has allowed the consumer to outthink and out-manuever his and her own political and business leadership in the ceaseless game of self-preservation," says Sindlinger.

Sindlinger's market research and consumer polling firm, which operates out of Warhams, Pa., says it has logged more than four million telephone interviews with households over an 18-year period. It interviews every day about political, economic and marketing opinions, among others.

Because his organization has what amounts to a stethoscope on the grass roots, Sindlinger was asked his opinion on what constitutes America's strength in the midst of economic adversity.

In responding, he commented upon the uncanny ability of consumers to perceive the truth and the inability of leaders to understand this.

"The consumers represent 90 per cent of the national public, the leadership only 10 per cent. Unfortunately, the minority tends to be rather inbred and gets its ideas from itself rather than from those impacted by its decisions," he said.

In his opinion, the present economic disruptions are better understood by affected households than by the nation's leaders, who are mainly observers, and perhaps not very acutely aware or as well informed.

"The consumer, we have learned, is willing to listen as well as to talk, especially when he and she are being leveled with," he said.

"Getting it straight is so important that consumers have developed, literally, into walking antennae that field information from all sources. They get the word from their leadership through the news media, and at more basic levels from friends, fellow workers and relatives."

Sindlinger maintains that "friends perennially beat the leadership when it comes to credibility. The consumer has trust in friends; otherwise they wouldn't remain as friends."

This sensitivity to information, Sindlinger continued, "has allowed consumers to hone an uncanny knack for seeing through con jobs and baloney. Their survival is at stake if they don't."

"As a result, we find them to be far more perceptive and foresighted than their own bosses and political leaders in taking practical actions to cushion themselves against the hard times they perceive."

A striking example of this came in 1968, Sindlinger said, "when a majority of consumers flatly told us they didn't believe the government could sustain a 'guns and butter' policy, while administration officials remained wedded to the idea."

It is to this time that many economists trace the origins of our present economic problems. The consumer, he continued, is not especially ambitious, nor is he jealous of others.

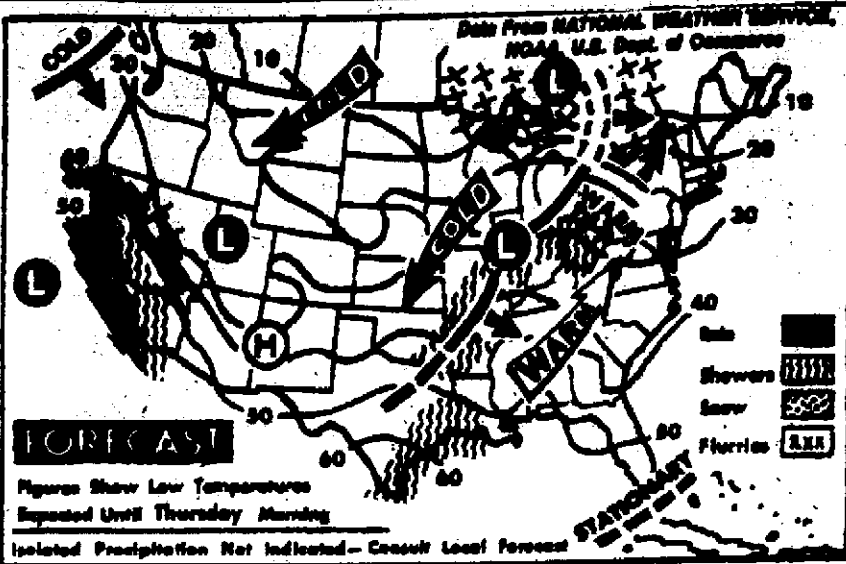

"He and she want only enough of the action to permit a decent and dignified existence. It's when the leaders fail to deliver that he and she turn them off."

He concluded: "When knit together, the consumer's common sense, awareness, penchant for survival and allegiance to country can be a tremendously positive force."

"It's up to the leadership minority to get it moving in the right direction, and communications with the consumer wouldn't be a bad jumping off point."

Jury Deliberates Sentence In Mass Sex Slaying Case

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A jury of eight women and four men meets today to determine the punishment for David Owen Brooks, convicted of slaying one of the 27 victims in the Houston mass murders case.

The jury deliberated only 90 minutes on Tuesday before finding the 29-year-old Brooks guilty of the murder of William R. Lawrence, 15, one of the those killed by what police say was a homosexual torture-murder ring.

Brooks was charged with four

Asked For Injuries

A Coloma woman has filed suit in Berrien circuit court seeking a total of $220,000 for injuries allegedly sustained in a two-car auto accident in 1972.

The plaintiff, Brenda Welche, claims she was injured on April 10 in a collision with another car in Benton Harbor.

Named defendants in the suit were Virginia L. Mitchell, of Riverside, identified as the driver of the other car, and Detroit Automobile Inter-Insurance Exchange, the plaintiff's insurance carrier.

The suit seeks $20,000 from Virginia Mitchell, and $200,000 from the insurance company, claiming the firm refused to honor the claim of the plaintiff resulting in a breach of contract.

Galien Township To Buy Radios

GALIEN — Galien township board last night approved the purchase of seven radio alert receiver units for the fire department.

The units will replace the fire phones currently used by the volunteer fire department for fire calls. Cost of the seven units is $1,065 and they will be purchased from Plectron Corp. of Overton, Neb.

In other areas, Trustee Clark Sherman, presiding in the absence of Supervisor Frank James, said the annual township meeting would be held April 5. A tentative budget and departmental reports will be reviewed at the meeting which is scheduled for 1 p.m. at the township hall.

Clerk Russell Babcock noted that the township board of review would be at the township hall Monday and Tuesday, from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m., to hear resident's property tax complaints.

The board voted to have the township Atty. Lee Boothby of Berrien Springs draw up a plumbing code as required by the state.

SOUTH HAVEN

Runaway Driver Sparks Foot Chase

SOUTH HAVEN — A Muskegon teenager was to be arraigned in Seventh District court here today on charges of auto theft and fleeing police following a foot chase early today.

Charles Flores Jr., 19, was arrested by city police following a chase through a residential area of the city's east side.

City Patrolman James Swisher suffered minor injuries from falls during the chase through back yards and over fences.

Swisher said the chase began after he stopped a pickup truck for a traffic violation shortly after 1 a.m. and the driver fled on foot. The man managed to elude Swisher, but Flores was arrested minutes later when officers found a man hiding in a ditch near Blue Star Memorial highway and Superior street.

Swisher suffered a bruised knee and cut hands, but did not require medical attention.

Officers determined the pickup had been stolen from Grand Haven last night. The vehicle was recovered before the owner knew it had been stolen, police said.

Flores was charged with unlawfully driving away a vehicle, fleeing a police officer and driving under the influence of liquor.

Berrien Shooting Conviction Upheld

The Michigan Court of Appeals has upheld the conviction and sentence of a Detroit man who got a life prison term for shooting Coloma Township Police Chief Richard Klimaszewski.

The court denied the appeal of Matthew Leon Baker, 35, who was convicted in Berrien circuit court of assault with intent to murder, and sentenced by Judge Julian Hughes to life imprisonment.

Klimaszewski was grazed under the ribs by a bullet April 3, 1974, after he had stopped a car on I-94 in Coloma township for a defective taillight. Baker was captured a short time later by other officers.

Klimaszewski, who at the counts of murder, but he was tried only for the slaying of Lawrence.

Defense attorney Jim Skelton told newsmen he would appeal. He said District Court Judge William M. Hatten decided Brooks' fate when he permitted the state to present evidence on all 27 slayings.

In closing arguments, Asst. District Atty. Don Lambright described Brooks as the "manipulator" in the mass murders, which Lambright called "the most horrible crime in the history of modern man."

Lambright said Brooks helped Elmer Wayne Henley, 18, lure youths, some of them friends and neighbors, to the home of Dean Corli, a 33-year-old power company employee who police say was the leader of the murder ring.

Lambright said the boys were stripped, tied to a bed, "homosexually raped for God knows how long" and finally killed.

Skelton said it was a "horrible crime," but he said the state never proved Brooks actively participated in any of the murders.

The slayings came to light after Corli was shot to death Aug. 8, 1973, by Henley during a paint sniffing-sex party. The death was later ruled justifiable homicide.

Brooks and Henley later led officers to 27 bodies buried at three sites — a Houston boat shed, a Gulf beach and a forested area near Lake Sam Rayburn.

Henley was convicted last year of six counts of murder. He is serving a 504-year prison sentence.

Police reported a snowmobile valued at $450 was stolen from the home of Leo R. Lucker, 825 Clemens avenue, St. Joseph township, early yesterday morning.

St. Joseph township Patrolman Larry Elchleberger said he followed the snowmobile tracks to a vacant field between Lincoln avenue and Washington north of Malden lane, where the machine had been abandoned.

Benton Harbor police reported Sonja Faye Poole, 27, of 935 Highland avenue, was arrested Tuesday on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. A .22 caliber revolver was confiscated.

Police said the arrest was made at Highland avenue and Benton street after officers received a report that a woman with a gun had threatened another person.

Kennedy Library Is Still Little More Than A Dream

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Twelve years after his assassination, the library intended to memorialize President John F.

Kennedy is little more than a dream. Public protests, political procrastination, unraveled plans and a lawsuit are landmarks of the intervening years.

Now the builders of the Kennedy presidential library are where they started — looking for a place to put it.

The location the late president wanted, a subway yard near Harvard, has been abandoned, at least for the museum section of the complex. Kennedy family members and friends control the corporation that will build the library and turn it over to the government, and they are viewing sites in Boston, the suburbs, Cape Cod and even Washington.

Some of the late president's associates say they are afraid it never will be built or if it is, will be far from Kennedy's wishes.

"We have two options," said Steven Smith, the Kennedy brother-in-law who is leading the search. "Either leave the archives at Harvard and locate the museum elsewhere or build the whole thing outside Cambridge."

The Harvard connection has been the source of most of the library's problems. Kennedy, before he died, wanted the complex built near his alma mater so that he could preside over his library in an atmosphere of academia.

But unlike other presidential libraries, which have rural settings, Harvard is in Cambridge, a tightly settled city across the Charles River from Boston. And the subway yard that Kennedy liked is in Harvard Square, the heart of Cambridge.

It took four years of debates and power plays in the state legislature to find a new location for the subway yard, and even now the changeover is not complete.

In May, 1973, the library corporation unveiled its plans for the complex. Their plastic table-top model showed a crescent shaped building dominated by a giant glass pyramid.

That pyramid became the focal point of opposition from a budding corps of Cambridge residents who envisioned millions of tourists roaming through Harvard Square, making the normal congestion impossible.

Eventually, the library corporation scaled down its plans, making them less "monumental." But the opposition strengthened. Leaders said they would welcome the library archives, which would house the presidential papers and be open to a few quiet scholars. But they said the museum of Kennedy mementoes and trivia — the major tourist attraction — would have to go.

In January, a neighborhood group brought a lawsuit demanding to be shown all information that went into an environmental impact study. That, for the library corporation, was the last straw. Faced with years of potential litigation, Smith announced on Feb. 6 that the museum would not be built in Cambridge. The search began for alternatives.

The search raises several problems, and one of the biggest is money.

The library corporation raised $18.5 million, much of it through small donations across the country, to build the complex. Investment losses and expenses have shrunk this to about $15 million.

If the library is split into two sections with the archives at Harvard and the museum somewhere else, it will be difficult to build two buildings with the money that is left, Smith said.

Another problem, if the complex is split, is where to put the museum. The corporation has received about 60 offers and suggestions on where to relocate, but most of the serious ones would welcome the library only if it contains both the archives and museum, a spokesman said.

Among these are suggestions that the complex be built at the University of Massachusetts campuses in Boston and Amherst and at Cape Cod Community College near the Kennedy compound at Hyannis Port.

However, library officials appear reluctant to abandon Harvard completely.

"It's unfortunate, because that's where the president wanted the archives and museum built," Smith said. "It would be too bad not to be able to honor at least some of his wishes."

The most substantial offer so far for relocating the museum portion comes from the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, library officials say.

Roger L. Stevens, chairman of center's trustees, suggested that the museum could be housed in an unfinished auditorium over the Eisenhower Theater. This would save the expense of building a separate structure.

Some old Kennedy friends say they are upset by the idea. "We're talking about people," said Kenneth O'Donnell, the late president's secretary. "That's what I'm mad about. To take care of 75 scholars is not what President Kennedy had in mind. I am very angry."

"To put it in a movie theater in Washington is about as classless as anything I can imagine."

Dave Powers, one of Kennedy's closest aides, would be curator of the presidential museum. Currently he presides over cartons of Kennedy artifacts in a federal warehouse in suburban Waltham.

"Now I'm afraid we'll never have a library," Powers said. "An archive at Harvard and a few exhibits in Washington do not add up to a presidential library."

I.M. Pei, the architect for the complex, said he is designing an archive building for Harvard in case that is included in the final plan.

Smith said he hoped to present information on the possible sites to the library corporation trustees within three months. A spokesman said the earliest possible groundbreaking would be next summer and could be later if an environmental impact study is required.
